Who Understands Finance?
An Infectious Idea.
Bad Vatican City News.
Pity the Oil Men.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GERMANY'S TROUBLES, the troubles of Austria-Hungary, and so forth, puzzle the "wise financiers." Just what it all means, they cannot tell you. The ordinary individual sees one thing plainly.

Germany was beaten by the Allies, Alsace-Lorraine and her colonies taken from her. The Allies then arranged a pleasant program, by which they would have taken from a beaten and impoverished nation hundreds of millions in gold every year.

It sounded like planning to take 10 pounds of flesh each week from a sick kitten. The plan did not work.

JUST HOW SICK the kitten is by this time, nobody knows. But there is great power and ability in Germany, and the fact that the Versailles Treaty compelled the Germans to discontinue gigantic expenses for a standing army and navy must have helped.

PERHAPS IT will all come out beautifully and smoothly in the end. One fact seems established, namely, that we are not going to get back the 10 billions that we lent to Europe.

But that will not "break us," or cause any very deep grief, if Europe's nations will get on their feet, stop their hating, warring, throat-cutting and thieving, and make their governments act as decent citizens act toward each other.

THE AVERAGE American reads with satisfaction instructions sent by President Hoover to Secretary Stimson, who will take part in the conference of nations in London.

The Secretary's instructions are to interest himself in the ECONOMIC QUESTIONS involved, and, by implication, he is instructed to keep out of political matters and any others not immediately concerning Germany's present financial plight.

IT IS ALLEGED, authenticity not guaranteed, that when Calvin Coolidge was asked his opinion of the suggested moratorium in Europe, he replied:

"That kind of thing is infectious."

With wheat on the farm at 25 cents a bushel, in some places, and oats at 15 cents a bushel, a moratorium has already been suggested by farmers. That would mean the right to discontinue all payments on mortgages, notes at banks, International Harvester Company bills, etc., until further notice.

It is an "infectious" idea, but it will not be adopted here.

ALEXANDER LEGGE, who used to be head of the Farm Board, surprises the National Livestock Association with the statement that our farms are "thoroughly solvent," and that "agriculture is better off than any other American industry."

He says the farmers own $43,000,000,000 worth of tilled land, even after deflation, and the mortgages total only nine and a half billions. Railroads and the other big corporations are all worse off.

NEWS FROM the Vatican City tells of a bomb placed in St. Peter's Cathedral, close to the great altar where the Pope celebrates mass on important occasions.

The bomb, discovered and removed to the Vatican gardens, exploded six hours later, tearing up the ground, destroying several beautiful trees. Had it not been found it might have done harm to the cathedral, although it was crudely made.

ON BEHALF of the Italian government it is suggested that the bomb was placed by anti-Fascists, that the explosion in St. Peter's might arouse hatred against the government.

Mussolini and the Vatican City authorities combined will solve the mystery, and, let us hope, detect the criminal.

IT IS DESIRABLE to help Europe, if we can, for if Europe sinks, it would be bad for us.

It would be desirable to help various things in the United States also, if that were possible.

For instance, the "Independent Petroleum Association of America," with headquarters in Tulsa, Okla., says:

"Because of shrinkage in the value of crude oil in the Midcontinent area, the daily loss in new capital in this area is $1,696,000."

Multiply that considerable sum by 365, and you have $619,040,000, an item worth thinking about.

IT IS LARGELY due to a drop in the value of crude oil, from $1.29 a barrel in 1930 to 33 cents and lower in 1931.

Oil in the United States reminds you of little Alice's Cheshire cat. It gradually disappeared until nothing but the smile was left. In the case of the oil industry it isn't a cheerful smile.

THIS WILL INTEREST farmers, "trying to make cows pay." The big Sheffield Farms Milk Company cuts the price of cream 25 per cent, and you can buy half a pint of cream for 16 cents, or 72 cents a quart.

Cows would pay well if farmers could get that price. One trouble with the world, especially in farming, is TOO EXPENSIVE DISTRIBUTION.

BUCHAREST, July 18.—(INS.)—Former Queen Helen, of Rumania, today was speeding toward London on the Orient Express. Surrounded by friends and with tears in her eyes, the unhappy Princess left Bucharest last night.

Every member of the Rumanian royal family with the exception of Michael and King Carol were present at the station when the Princess departed. Former King George, of Greece, boarded the train with the intention of accompanying his sister on part of her journey.

Among those bidding Helen farewell were Dowager Queen Marie who was also in tears, Princess Ileana and her fiance, Archduke Anton.

VATICAN BOMB PROBE PUSHED

VATICAN CITY, July 18.—(INS.)—No clue to the identity of the person who placed a bomb in St. Peter's yesterday had been found today.

Both Fascist and Vatican police officials were engaged in seeking the would-be perpetrator of an outrage that would have shocked the world.

Italian newspapers including the Vatican organ, the Osservatore Romano, limited their accounts of the affair to bare details. Some quarters attributed the bomb to anti-Fascists, others urged that the church and state come to some agreement and end the quarrel over the Catholic Youth clubs which were suppressed by Mussolini recently.

GERMAN CHIEFS IN PARIS FOR SHOWDOWN

Bruening, Curtius Arrive For Fateful Conference; Welcomed at Station

BULLETIN.

PARIS, July 18.—(INS.)—The Franco-German conversations aimed at solution of Germany's grave financial difficulties were formally launched this afternoon when Chancellor Heinrich Bruening called at the Ministry of the Interior for a conference with Premier Pierre Laval.

International News Service.

PARIS, July 18.—The future status of continental Europe was placed in the hands of a little group of statesmen today when Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Dr. Julius Curtius, of Germany, arrived in Paris to talk over the grave economic crisis threatening the Reich.

Their arrival marked the inception of a conference heralded as the most important international conclave since the statesmen of the world gathered in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles in 1919 to reshuffle the map of Europe at the conclusion of the greatest war in history.

Approximately 10,000 persons, easily comprising one of the largest crowds ever to turn out in Paris to welcome foreign emissaries, were at the Gare de L'Est when the taciturn, sober-faced German chancellor and his aide disembarked from their train.

WELCOMED BY LAVAL

Premier Pierre Laval and Aristide Briand, shaggy veteran of France's foreign office, headed the official committee of welcome. While a heavy cordon of police held back the crowds, the visiting Germans were escorted along the station platform through lines of potted palms and ferns to waiting motor cars.

In conference today, Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtiss will hear directly for the first time the guarantees which France imposes on her participation in what is understood to be

Picnic Fatal

JOSEPH TYLER

BOY DROWNS AT PICNIC

A score of youngsters from St. Paul's Orphanage, Idlewood, went to the Woodlawn Knights of Columbus camp on Raccoon Creek for a picnic. All had a "grand time."

Tired out, they returned late, were checked into bed—and all were there except Joseph Tyler, 10.

Today Joe was back at the orphanage, not the happy, carefree Joe, but a little form in a white casket. When it was found he was missing, a search was made in vain through the woods surrounding the camp.

Early yesterday, the hunt was renewed. Later, Joe's clothing was found on the bank of the creek, and his body was discovered in three feet of water by P. A. Donavan, of Aliquippa.

Joe, with the rest, had had one swim under the eyes of the older persons. Apparently he had gone for another swim after dinner.

Joe's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Tyler, has been staying at the home of her sister, Mrs. William D. Roberts, 957 Washington boulevard, and the boy has been at St. Paul's nearly two years. His two brothers, Robert, 7, and Russell, 13, are also at St. Paul's. The parents are separated, and Mrs. Tyler obtained work just last week, after a long period of unemployment.

Bomb Wrecks Home; Man, Wife Unhurt

Two persons escaped injury early today when a bomb explosion wrecked a two-story frame building at 2939 Chester street, McKeesport.

The house was occupied by Frank Passone and his wife. They were asleep on the second floor. Passone was winner of $1,600 in the recent English Derby.

Chief of Police John J. Whalen, of McKeesport, said Passone, an Italian, declared he knew of no motive for the bombing.

A few minutes before the blast two men parked a Packard automobile in Ohio street, near Passone's home and were seen to approach the house. A few minutes later sparks from a fuse were seen. The men fled as the explosion shook, but did not damage, nearby houses.

According to Chief Whalen, Passone has been arrested several

Bricks Crash Taxi And Store Windows

A large plate glass window in the hat cleaning store of Nick Cordas, Brownsville road, Mt. Oliver, was shattered, and a window in a Green cab was broken early today when seven men in a machine hurled paving bricks at two taxicabs near the Mt. Oliver Police Station. Munhall Robbers Get $2,000 in Gems

Jewelry valued at more than $2,000 was reported stolen early last night from the unlocked apartment of Samuel Siegal, of 622 Fourteenth avenue, Munhall, while members of the family were in Pittsburgh visiting relatives.

Daughter Struck by Rock, Fall Gets Shotgun

EL PASO, Tex., July 18.—(AP.)—Police were called to the home of Albert B. Fall here last night after Mrs. C. C. Chase, his daughter, had been struck by a large piece of concrete which she said had been thrown from the direction of a group of photographers near the Fall house.

Police said that when they arrived the former secretary of the interior was sitting in a chair with a shotgun across his knees.

The missile struck Mrs. Chase on one leg, but its force was broken by small limbs of a tree and by her dress. She said she had been watering flowers. Police were unable to find the person who threw the concrete.

Fall's plans to leave for the New Mexico penitentiary at Santa Fe to serve a sentence of a year and a day were closely guarded.

Police Capture Three As Auto Catches Fire

Three men, who police said may be a gang, who early today were frightened away while trying to rob the P. H. Butler store at 9 Judicial street, Mt. Washington, were caught by police after a wild chase when their automobile overturned and caught fire at Forbes and Brady streets shortly after 8:30 a. m.

All were slightly injured and were given treatment at Mercy Hospital, before being taken to Oakland Police Station.

OFFICERS SPOT CAR

They gave their names as Regis Jordon, 24, of 723 Lowell street, Mike Debelli, 24, of 508 McDonald street, and Dominick Cardollo, 20, of 26 Mayflower street. They were charged with being suspicious persons.

Motorcyclemen Howard Luffy and Harry Seibel saw the car at Washington street and Wylie avenue, and when they prepared to question the occupants, the driver stepped on the gas and sped away. The police chased them to Forbes and Brady streets, where the car overturned.

The robbery of the store, which has been raided a number of times by thieves, was thwarted by the appearance of a milk truck delivery man, when he drove up to the place and saw the men in the building.

LOCKED IN ICE BOX

Some months ago three men robbed the store after locking Donald McIntyre, 17, of Mt. Washington, an employe, in an ice box. A month later McIntyre recognized one of the men on the street and followed him to a skating rink in Allentown. He called police and had the man arrested. The others later were caught.

About a month ago the men were sentenced to the penitentiary, one receiving a sentence of 10 to 20 years, one 30 to 40 years and the third 40 to 60 years.

2 In Blood-Stained Auto Captured After Chase

Two men were arrested at Seventh street and Duquesne way early today in a blood-stained automobile following a chase through North Side and downtown streets. The chase started in Range way, near Sandusky street, North Side. Patrolman Charles Otterson was knocked from the running board of the machine when he started to question the men, reported to have been toying with a revolver. The men were bleeding from facial wounds, police said.

Questioned at Central Police Station the men, who said they were Herbert Hollander, 26, of 3616 Smallman street, and S. M. Cohen, 34, of 415 Climax street, said they had been fighting. They implicated Joseph Toth, 28, of 23 East Lacock street, who was arrested by North Side police. A fourth man is being sought.

Patrolman Captures Two, Third Suspect Flees

Patrolman Andrew Lotz, of Swissvale, captured two of three alleged thieves after a battle in front of a chain store at Burton street and Monongahela avenue, Swissvale, early today.

A third suspect, who escaped Lotz's grasp, was arrested after a chase by Chief William Campbell, who attired only in shoes and trousers, dashed several blocks along Monongahela avenue, firing his revolver twice.

SURPRISES TRIO

Lotz seized two of the men. A third began beating the officer in an effort to force him to release his pals. Lotz released the two momentarily and grappled with his assailant, wielding his blackjack.

Worsted by the patrolman's attack, the third man fled, as Lotz grabbed the other two again. They were lodged in Swissvale Police Station, where they gave their names as Calvin Taylor, 1027 Highland street, North Braddock, and Martin Davis, 39, no home.

CHIEF GIVES CHASE

Meanwhile, Chief Campbell, who lives nearby, hearing the commotion, rose hurriedly and saw a man running by his house. He gave chase, twice fired his revolver, and finally captured a man, who was bleeding from the head. He also was lodged in Swissvale station, where he gave his name as Edward Sheehan, 26, of 549 Price avenue, North Braddock.

While Lotz was arresting the suspects, fire started in the Hubert pharmacy, Noble and Roselyn streets, over which Lotz resides. His wife was compelled to leave.

Firemen C. D. Caldwell and Martin Tatzer were overcome by chemicals while fighting the blaze, which was confined to the prescription room. Damage was placed at $500.

Thief Scared Away On 2nd Trip to Coop

A thief paid a second visit today to the chicken coops of Mrs. Josephine Denender, at 3020 Frederick street, but fled when a neighbor, awakened by the noise, yelled at him. He left behind a sack containing the 12 fowls which he had killed. In the first robbery three weeks ago 35 chickens were stolen.

Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr today was to join in the questioning of Simon Lefkovitz, 55, his wife, Mrs. Katherine Lefkovitz, 55, of 400 Talbot avenue, Braddock, and Andrew Peplesky, 42, in connection with the incendiary fire discovered in the Lefkovitz's home last night.

Oil was found burning in six rooms of the house, police said. Damage was estimated at $700. There was no one in the house during the fire.

According to Patrolman Ray Queen, he discovered the fire while walking his beat, and turned in the alarm. Fire Chief C. K. Martin, who estimated the damage, said that he found oil burning in a washtub, pitchers and kegs in bedrooms on the second and third floors of the house.

The couple and Peplesky were taken to the Braddock Police Station for questioning when they returned to the house early today.

FAKED VOTERS' LISTS SLATED FOR DISCARD

New Board Making Check, House-to-House, to Purge Election Lists of City

Thousands of illegal registrations, many of long existence, will be stricken from the voting lists, principally from the first six wards of the city, it is expected, as a result of the new Registration Commission's house-to-house check of its lists.

The checkup being conducted under the direction of Peter Connors and 25 investigators continued today and was to include many sections of the city.

FAKES REVEALED

So far the investigation, it is reported, has shown registrations of scores from addresses which were revealed as billboards, parking lots, vacant lots, a boiler works, vacant houses and other uninhabited places.

A list of 36 names said to have been turned over by a political worker to the proprietor of the St. Clair Hotel, Boulevard of the Allies, was recovered by the investigators. Nine of the names were marked with a star, and a notation made that they were not likely to be here, but they could be used as "pinch hitters." Three were marked with a dash. They proved to be Negro employes of the hotel. Investigators say these names were to be put on the voters list after being assessed. None of the names on the list are now residents of the hotel.

The checkup has been in progress since the reorganization of the board two weeks ago, but no official announcement of the results has yet been made.

WAR ON CROOKS

Explaining the checkup and its purposes a statement was issued last night which declared:

"The board is not making any sensational moves or disclosures. It is perfectly true that certain investigations have been made.

"Legal voters will find that this board will lend every aid to help them register. The commission will do all in its power to stop illegal registration and prosecute those who attempt illegal registration to the full extent of the law."

BOMB IN AUTO ROCKS BETHEL

A mysterious dynamite explosion in the automobile of Charles Hopson, Bethel Township pop manufacturer, today shook house windows, awoke residents on the Bethel road and started the State Police detail, in the district on strike duty, on the dim trail of the bomber. An automobile was seen driving from the scene of the explosion shortly before it occurred, the police learned.

The explosion happened at 5 a. m. Hopson was asleep in his house; the car was parked in the driveway at the side of the house. The explosion blew out all the windows of the machine, but caused no other damage.

Hopson told the state investigators he had received no threats.

The remains of the two sticks of dynamite were found in front of the driver's seat of the car.

Police were investigating the possibility that strike sympathizers may have been responsible for the bombinb. It was reported that threats had been made against at least one truck owner who refused to loan a truck to such sympathizers.

a $500,000,000 loan from the reserve banks of France, England and the United States.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, accompanied by his son, Paul, arrived this morning from Cap Ferrat. With Secretary of State Stimson, he will participate in a four-power conference over the German financial situation after the Franco-German conversations are concluded.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS

While the French proposals have never been announced, they are believed to entail the backing of the loan by German customs receipts and an international controlling committee to supervise German expenditures, somewhat in the manner of the defunct Dawes plan. The plan is said to have the approval of the American and British delegates.

The $500,000,000 would be advanced to the Reichsbank in the same manner as the $100,000,000 loaned and extended recently by the Bank of International Settlements. Both loans would be repaid as soon as possible by the proceeds of a 10-year credit guaranteed by the United States, France, England, Italy and Belgium.

Three Communists Slain In German Rioting

By WALTER DIETZEL,
International News Service.

At dawn the police took the offensive in an endeavor to clear the streets of barricades. They appeared to have the situation well in hand.

During the fighting three Communists were fatally wounded and one policeman slightly. Most of the rioters battling with the police and looting stores were young men.

The police declared that Communist leaders were attempting to cause an uprising throughout the Ruhr, which is the principal industrial district of Germany.

At Coblentz, the Rhine city occupied by American troops after the armistice, the police prevented a serious riot by dispersing mobs with tear gas.

MACKAY WEDS ANNA CASE

MADE FIRST TALKIE

With the arrival of talking pictures, Miss Case made the first sound picture, "La Fiesta," which was sent around the country to introduce the new art. She previously had appeared in silent films.

The marriage recalls the estrangement of Mr. Mackay and his daughter, Ellin, after her marriage in 1926 to Irving Berlin, who began his career as a singing waiter and became one of America's foremost composers of popular music. It was said the father's disapproval was based on difference in religious faiths. Although the Mackays were prominently identified with the Roman Catholic Church, the Berlins were married at the municipal building by a city clerk.

Mrs. Berlin and her father became reconciled two years later, after the death of Mr. Mackay's mother, in fulfillment, it was said, of the grandmother's wish.

BRIDGE STRIFE STIRS TEXAS, OKLAHOMA

Gov. Murray Ignores Federal Court Order in Effort to Rid State of Toll Charges

DENISON, Tex., July 18.—(AP.)—A dusty detour, an absent judge and a tractor were the principal factors of interest in a "war of the bridges" today along the Red River front separating Oklahoma and Texas.

Hundreds of travelers used a detour via Preston and Madill over a free bridge there while the question of whether a free bridge, newly built or a toll bridge should be used between this city and Durant, Okla., remained unanswered.

The toll bridge was open on the Texas side, but blockaded on the Oklahoma; the free bridge was open at the Oklahoma end, but barricaded and guarded by Texas rangers on this side of the river.

MURRAY RIPS RED TAPE

Gov. W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, of Oklahoma, ordered the slashed governmental red tape and ordered the free bridge thrown open to motorists without consulting Texas authorities.

Gov. Ross Sterling, of Texas, mindful of a federal injunction obtained by the toll bridge company, placed Texas rangers at the end of the span, with orders to "keep it closed."

$150,000 SUIT PENDING

A federal court suit is pending in Houston to restrain the Texas authorities from opening the Denison-Durant structure at this end until consumation of an agreement under which the state would pay the bridge company $150,000.

Officials of the Red River Bridge Company, operators of the toll bridge, were expected to continue their search for District Judge Porter Newman, at Durant, who was reported "out of his office" all yesterday afternoon while they sought to remove the Oklahoma blockade by court action.

A tractor was called by Oklahoma highway crews when they learned they could not "tear up the roadbed" to the toll bridge in accordance with orders of Gov. Murray, without more powerful equipment than was available.

Traffic moved freely over a new bridge between Ringgold and Terral, paralleling a toll bridge. This bridge was opened Thursday. Another free bridge, between Gainesville and Marietta, remained inaccessible because the Texas approach was not completed.

Development of the situation followed a long campaign to rid the two states of the toll bridges. Construction of the free bridges came after purchase of the pay spans proved not feasible.

ARREST SLAIN MAN'S PAL

KITTANNING, Pa., July 18.—(AP.)—James Householder, 19, of North Vandergrift, was arrested yesterday as the companion of Alphonse Akstin, Vandergrift, who was fatally shot yesterday in the gasoline station of Ford Shankle, at Cowansville. Householder, who was shot in the shoulder, was found walking along a highway between Kittanning and Leechburg, and was brought here as a coroner's inquest into Akstin's death was in progress.

Householder told the coroner a third man was in the party that entered the station, but he said he did not know the man's name. Shankle, who shot Akstin, said he did not see a third man.

Shankle was absolved of blame by the coroner's jury. Entrance to the gas station was gained by taking out a window and then opening a door from the inside.

Householder was held for further investigation.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 18.—(AP.)—Director of Public Safety Lemuel B. Schofield, of Philadelphia, was halted last night by a traffic officer and cautioned against driving 58 miles an hour and weaving in and out of heavy shore-bound traffic, police records show.

DRY CHARGES AGAINST MEXICAN CONSUL QUICKLY DROPPED

SISTER-IN-LAW ALSO FREED IN BEER CASE

Officials Act to Avert International Ill Will After Raid on Residence

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 18.—(AP.)—Quick action by city officials to prevent the possible creation of ill will between Mexico and the United States today had wiped from the police blotter charges of violating the prohibition law filed against H. Valdez, Mexican consul here.

John McClelland, city manager, called a conference soon after it became known the charges had been filed and the city authorities announced last night the incident was closed so far as they were concerned.

Similar charges against Miss Kay Barrett, nurse and sister-in-law of Senor Valdez, also were ordered dismissed.

Three members of the police liquor squad said they found in Miss Barrett's home 46 pints of beer and eight gallons of beer mash, and that Senor Valdez was at the home when they made the search.

PAIR RELEASED

Although the search was made Monday night, Senor Valdez and Miss Barrett were not taken to police headquarters until late yesterday. They were released on their own recognizance. A warrant for the search was issued by Mike Foster, municipal judge.

Albert McRill, municipal attorney, said it would have been impossible to obtain a conviction against Valdez because of diplomatic immunity.

Gov. W. H. Murray, informed of the charges, asserted:

"They shouldn't have done 'hat."

BLAMES PREJUDICE

Miss Barrett attributed the search of her home to "prejudice against Senor Valdez" by "narrow, petty-minded neighbors." Both denied the officers had presented a search warrant.

The consul said the officers poured out the beer over his protest. He related he was visiting at the home of Miss Barrett with another couple, saying:

"We were drinking beer and eating sandwiches when the officers walked in."

Valdez' wife, Miss Barrett's sister, died two years ago. They were married after Senor Valdez came here as consul.

M'KEES ROCKS SUSPECTS FREE

Three men arrested in connection with the investigation of the bombing of the home of Thomas J. Conley, McKees Rocks vice crusader, were released today as the Citizens' Committee conferred with Attorney Ralph H. Smith on a plan of action.

Mike Cianacco, poolroom proprietor; Joseph Davenjay and Samuel Xittinsto, arrested with 10 others and held pending an investigation, were freed by county detectives. The others had been released previously.

A number of the committee members are still of the opinion that state police action should be asked while others advocate waiting until the county detectives have been given more time to work on the case.

The Citizens Committee held its regular Friday night meeting last night in its headquarters, 293 Broadway, McKees Rocks.

Frank Lackovitch, of 306 Campbell street, a neighbor of Conley, who was arrested when county detectives visited his home and reported finding a quantity of liquor, was held for court on a charge of violating the Snyder act at a hearing before Alderman George Anderson yesterday.

Police today were seeking an armed man who held up Lee Murray, 79, of McKee street, Tarentum, a retired farmer, and robbed him of $110 as he sat on the front porch of his home last night.

The robbery occurred, police said, when the man approached Murray and inquired the residence of a neighbor. Drawing a gun, he forced Murray to stand and robbed him of a $100 bill of old large-sized currency which, according to police, Murray carried as a "pocket piece," and a $10 bill.

Following the robbery Murray was warned:

"Keep quiet until I get out of sight, or I'll shoot."

BANK EMPLOYE JAILED HERE

Earl S. Cain, 24, of Mill street, Coraopolis, was held in county jail today on charges of forgery and embezzlement of $7,500 from the Coraopolis Savings and Trust Company, where he was employed as a bookkeeper, according to Constable William Duncan of Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan's office.

Cain was arrested in his apartment last night by Duncan after informations against him were made by J. D. Swigart, state bank examiner. Duncan said that Cain told him he lost the money in a big downtown gambling house.

Cain, whose bail was fixed at $15,000, was committed to jail and he will be arraigned before Alderman Flanigan Tuesday.

Bank officials said the bank was protected by a bonding company.

FIGHTING ENDED DEMPSEY SAYS

RENO, Nevada, July 18.—(INS.)—Although admittedly intrigued by the thought that anyone would offer a million dollars for his services Jack Dempsey, Reno's No 1 citizen, has no plans for a "comeback," and likes the business of promoting prize fights instead of fighting.

The former heavyweight champion said today:

"I'm going to stay right here and promote fights. We're still looking around for principals in our proposed Labor Day battle."

"I wish I knew how people who spread such reports get so familiar with my personal affairs.

Dempsey, concerning reports he is "broke," said:

"They know more about my own business than I do, that's certain.

"I've retired from the ring and I intend to stay retired. Since I quit fighting I've had more offers to attempt a comeback than almost any other man who ever retired, I guess. I have turned them down and shall continue to turn them down. I'm through!"

He said the qualifications of applicants for the vacancy were discussed in a closed session but that the resignation was acted on in public meeting.

JACK KEARNS SUED FOR BALM

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP.)—A $150,000 breach of promise suit, brought by Mrs. Eileen Dorothy Hayes, wife of "Teddy" Hayes, boxing trainer, against John L. McKernon, known in sporting circles as Jack Kearns, manager of boxers, was disclosed yesterday in the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Hayes charged McKernon was the father of her child, that he and "one Hayes" conspired to marry her to Hayes and after the ceremony Hayes abandoned her. She said she was unmarried in July, 1928, when McKernon and she allegedly agreed at Asbury Park, N. J., to marry. She asserted he repeated his promise in Manhattan and other places subsequently.

Filing of a complaint became known when attorneys for McKernon took action to have the suit transferred to Federal Court on the ground that McKernon is a resident of Chicago and Mrs. Hayes lives in New York.

DIVORCEE FREED OF MURDER; CHEERED

Number '13' Marked Events Of Life, Woman, Tried for Patrolman's Death, Says

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 18.—Thirteen is a potent figure in the life of Mrs. Edna James, 27-year-old divorcee, acquitted here last night of the murder of Raymond Castner, her policeman admirer. She said after the verdict:

"I was born on the thirteenth and was christened on the thirteenth. I was first married on the thirteenth, although that wasn't so lucky, except to give me my boy. I was divorced on the thirteenth and met Raymond Castner on the thirteenth."

Mrs. James also went on trial on the thirteenth. She said that she had confidence all the time that she would be found guiltless.

FAINTS AFTER VERDICT

The courtroom crowd made such a wild demonstration, cheering and applauding and attempting to congratulate the young woman that she collapsed and had to be placed under the care of a physician. She was later taken to the home of friends, where she will remain until she decides her plans for the future. She would not discuss her plans last night.

One example of the temper of the spectators who followed the trial daily was seen in the action of an elderly couple, who approached Mrs. James and offered her and her son a home with them on a farm. She thanked them and said she would consider the offer.

JURORS WEEP

Jurors said the balloting from the start was strongly toward acquittal. Jurors shook Mrs. James' hand and shed tears with her. Several of them told her:

"This is your big chance girl, now go straight."

The streets in the vicinity of the courthouse were packed with people for two hours after the verdict, all seeking a glimpse of the defendant.

'MA' KENNEDY THROUGH WITH 'WHAT A MAN'

'No Money From Me,' Aimee's Mother Says, Commenting On Husband's Bigamy Suit

LOS ANGELES, May 18, —(AP.)— Mrs. Minnie Kennedy-Hudson one time Angelus Temple leader and the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, today lopped off her name at the hyphen. She dropped what she had added just 20 days ago when she became a June bride in a midnight marriage to the Rev. G. Edward Hudson in Longview, Wash. She said:

"I'm through. I have my own life to live. From now on I'm the old 'Mother' Kennedy that used to be."

ROMANCE SHATTERED

Their romance shattered by a divorce action filed here yesterday by Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson and the announcement by County Prosecutor Cecil C. Hallin at Longview that he was preparing to ask the extradition of Hudson for alleged bigamy, the bride and bridegroom became quite matter of fact.

Commenting on the other Mrs. Hudson's petition for $200 a month temporary alimony, $5,000 final alimony and $500 attorney fees, "Ma" said:

"I'm glad to know Mrs. Newton places a fairly high price on Mr. Hudson.

"Needless to say there will be no money forthcoming from me. Before our marriage Mr. Hudson voluntarily quitclaimed all rights to my real estate and properties, assuring me that it was myself only he cared for. I have filed for annulment and if the other lady considers herself his wife I'll gladly relinquish him."

'WHAT A MAN!'

Hudson, to whom Mrs. Kennedy often referred with the expression "What a man" defended himself in an interview, saying:

"Mrs. Kennedy knew about me before we were married. I told her everything.

"I've been around a bit in my life. What of it? Every man has met and known women. None of these women can say they went into anything with their eyes shut."

Referring to the proposed bigamy action, he said:

"That's a problem."

But his attorney changed the subject.

Mrs. Newton-Hudson, in her divorce petition, charges him with cruelty, desertion, misconduct with another woman and with living with Mrs. Kennedy illegally. Her attorney said she would go to Longview as a witness against Hudson if he is tried there on bigamy charges.

INDIAN PASTOR ON FURLOUGH TO PREACH

The Rev. J. C. Heinrich Will Fill Pulpit Till Fall At Shadyside U. P. Church

Returning on furlough from India, where he has been a foreign pastor for the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church since 1915, the Rev. J. C. Heinrich will be guest pastor at his home church here from July 19 to September 6.

Beginning tomorrow, he will give three sermons at the morning services, dealing with conditions in India: "The Church in North India."

ADMIRES GANDHI

Dr. Heinrich for the past eight years has been situated with his family at Rawalpindi, in the northwest part of India, and has the opportunity of studying the conditions of the depressed class, known as the untouchables, and the effect on them of Gandhi's work.

An admirer of Gandhi, he said: "I think his work with the people is one of the most significant spiritual achievements of the generation."

EFFECT OF SLUMP

Describing the effects of the world-wide depression, Dr. Heinrich said that the condition of the Indian farmer is very similar to that of the American farmer.

In India the depressed class, 60,000,000 strong, work as farmers and are paid with wheat, he explained. Since the depression, the price of wheat in India has fallen to its lowest point in the last 25 years, according to Dr. Heinrich.

The Mauretania, in port only a few hours, departed on a week-end cruise to Halifax. Her passengers included Mrs. Anna Corbaney, the Misses M. Keokee Sterns, Margery A., and Eileen Boyd, of Pittsburgh.

OLD WORLD GRACE SEEN IN BRITISH COURTS COSTUMES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 18.—Perhaps the printed descriptions of the gowns worn at the British courts each year do sound rather dull and similar. But just the same, these gowns are exquisitely beautiful with an old world grace that is cleverly combined with the current mode, without detracting from the essential dignity and simplicity of the costume. For despite the rich materials and embroideries and long court train, there is a simplicity about a court frock that is most attractive. And the feathers and veil of the prescribed headdress are undeniably attractive and not at all archaic when worn in the surroundings for which they are intended. Each year dressmakers here vie with each other in creating lovely gowns for the courts at Buckingham Palace. And even if some women do call the court frocks old-fashioned and odd-looking, there never seems to be a dearth of candidates for the honor of wearing such a frock at a presentation at the Court of St. James'.

* * *

AFTER SEEING the lovely presentation frock that Molyneux made for Miss Mildred Hockstader, of Purchase, N. Y., we felt sure that readers would be interested in a sketch and description of it. It is of heavy white satin, and there is a long square train. Diagonal piecings lend interest to the top of the skirt, which is circular and of even length all round. A diamond circlet held in place the regulation three Prince of Wales feathers and tulle veil and a white feather fan was carried.

Colbert and March Chosen To Co-Star in Picture Of Stage Play

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate

HOLLYWOOD, July 18.

In spite of all the sound and fury about westerns or mystery stories being the new cinema rage, matrimonial problem-dramas remain the most popular.

Paramount has just made a belated purchase of Ernest Pascal's "The Marriage Bed," to co-star Claudette Colbert and Frederic March. It will be the first time the two have appeared together since "Honor Among Lovers."

To delve back a bit into theatrical history, "The Marriage Bed" made its debut on the coast several years ago under the auspices of Felix Young. Sam Harris later was associated with Young in a Broadway showing of the play.

The film version will be done by Mr. Pascal, who, for a number of years, has been a regular contributor to the movies.

LATEST GOSSIP

William Wellman and his aviatrix, Marjorie Crawford, will be married in August after Bill's divorce becomes final . . . Speaking of divorces, you'd have expected more fireworks out of two people named Ginger Rogers and Jack Pepper . . . Matt Moore has had a chute built from the bedroom window of his beach house to the swimming pool . . . Dick Arlen is lending Walter Huston his boat for a fishing trip in August. Walter's destination is Mazatlan, Mexico . . . Carmen Barnes sported gold fingernails at the most recent premiere. But she still has to make her first picture . . . Each of the 60 odd houses in the Malibu colony contributes $10 a month to support a private life guard. The fame of this strip of sand has spread across the ocean. The French Gaumont news-reel had a crew there this week photographing the stars.

A NEW DEAL

When Warners reopen in September, William Wellman will make a new start on "Safe in Hell," with a different star. You may recall this film was stopped after four days in production because studio officials decided Lillian Bond looked too much like an ingenue to play Huston Branch's heroine. The new version will find Barbara Stanwyck in the leading role with a supporting cast that makes you sit up and take notice. Among the prominent names will be Richard Bennett, J. Farrell Macdonald, Nina Mae McKinney, Ivan Simpson and Noble Johnson.

CONJUGATE THIS ONE

An American doctor in Tsinan, Shantung, China, sends Harold Lloyd this English hand-bill, distributed by the Chinese theater there:

"A valuable, well-known comedy was humorously and dangerously performed by Harold Lloyd. It is a final, most famous silent picture never done by Harold Lloyd, and therefore it's value is needless to be commended and praised. We daresay you have never before seen any picture so comical as 'Speedy,' and it will be sure you never shall again."

Did you know that Marie Dressler's first stage pay-check was $8 a week? Eight years later she played on the same stage for $800 a week and 16 years later for $1,600 a week.

Fight Picture And Romance In Bill

By QUIN HALL

"Confessions of a Co-Ed" and pictures of several rounds of the recent Schmeling-Stribling heavyweight championship bout in Cleveland are features of the screen bill now showing in the Fulton. The first named film also is the feature of the photoplay program in the Sheridan Square.

"Confessions" is revealed as a dramatization of diary notes of a young woman who went away to be educated in the usual courses and learned something about love as well. Sylvia Sidney is the young woman concerned, and she winds up in the arms of the boy who had caused her some heartbreaks at school, although there is in the background her husband, whom she had wed in one of her periods of heartbreak, and a kiddie. The movies do have a way with them, don't they?

There are scenes of school frolics and such, but the general tone is dramatic rather than light. Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney and Norman Foster play the leading roles capably.

The boxing film in the Fulton presents the first, third, fifth and rounds from eighth until the finish, which is shown at regular screening speed and in slow motion. All of the action is clearly presented.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, July 18.

AMONG THE NEWER workers in the Broadway theatrical field is a young writer who, although he has done but one play, displays exceptional talent. He is a Jewish lad who, before tackling the theater, lived and worked among the highly orthodox on the lower east side of New York.

The folks who knew him before find it just a little bit difficult to understand the nature of the work he is doing. Many of them still live in the past and are untouched by the bustle and bustle of modernity in New York. Their lives are things apart. They know little of the Broadway world—and they care even less.

A few days ago the boy's father was approached by a little old lady who wore a shawl over her head. She had known the man for years, but she seemed very timid at this particular time. She hesitated so long that the father finally stepped in.

"What's the matter, Mrs. Cohen?" he asked. "Was there something you wanted?"

The elderly woman nodded.

"Yes," she replied. It's about Meyer, your son. But maybe you'll think I'm too fresh if I ask you."

The father shook his head.

"Not at all, Mrs. Cohen," he returned. I'm very proud of my boy's work. He's doing very well. What was it you wanted to know?"

The woman leaned closer.

"Tell me," she murmured. "Is it true that he is working on Broadway uptown?"

The man smiled.

"That's right," he said.

"Hmmmm," said the old lady, "is that so? You mean to say he is working with stage people, with music and with chorus girls?"

The father shrugged his shoulders.

"Why certainly, Mrs. Cohen," he asserted. "And why not? Meyer is a good boy and I can trust him anywhere. He loves the theater and they seem to think he's doing very well. I'm very happy that he's doing the thing he likes best."

"Sure, sure," replied the woman hastily. "I can understand that fine. But listen——"

She looked around to see that no one was listening. She was evidently getting to the climax; the question she wanted to ask in the beginnig. She leaned very close.

"Listen," she whispered. "Is it true that he's living in a hotel?"

* * *

Mr. Walter Winchell, that dear old pallor of mine, did a bit of boasting in a recent column.

"I guess my own artificial routine of living is best, after all," he wrote. "I've been doing it since 1910 and I look better right now than Hellinger—who has been dead five years!"

I would advise Mr. Winchell to do more writing and less wishing . . .

* * *

I have before me a recent copy of Rob Wagner's Script, a coast publication to which Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., is very evidently an important contributor. In it is an article by Mr. Vanderbilt that tells of his recent fight with Mr. Peter Arno in the city of Reno, Nev. That fight you will remember, was carried—and kidded—on the front pages of the nation's papers.

With your permission, I will quote a few of Mr. Vanderbilt's remarks. Maybe they will strike you as funny as they do me.

"Was my spectacular blow-up the result of a sudden, excitable impulse?" he writes. "No. I had warned the fellow on four different occasions to lay off and told him to devote his amorous attentions to the innumerable charming and unattached youngsters here. But he evidently preferred to play with fire.

"Heaven knows I have been in hot spots before, but this one fairly sizzles. In two days my life was threatened eight times. But I've also had offers of help. Oh, yes, help. The other day an absolute stranger came to me to demonstrate a new kind of explosive to be used at Boulder Dam, one small 'wheat cake' of which would put out of existence everybody within a hundred-foot circle. But, also, Arno's house was beyond those limits.

"And the morbid, curious mob. All day long it motors by an empty, frame house, bends to the right past a quiet, trickling fountain to a Moorish house. These two establishments, less than a block apart, are now as famous as was Aimee's shack at Carmel a few years ago. If I could charge admission, I'm sure I'd be able to pay the alimony Mary asks.

"The two innocents to the unhappy affair are both little girls—Florence Rice Smith, Grantland's attractive daughter, once enamoured of Arno (Arno, in French, means donkey!) and darling little Joan, aged six. Joan was with me before and after the near-debacle and I'll never forget that sweet baby's words the next morning. 'Uncle Neil, I wish you had used my ammonia pistol instead.'

"What's in a name? Plenty. Had the heavy's name been Curtis A. Peters (which it is) and mine John J. Smith (which it isn't), the unseemly brawl would have 'Peter Arno!' And 'a Vanderbilt!' Yes, there's a penalty for names. And I've always paid a fine price for mine. I envy the protective anonymity of the name John J. Smith."

Mr. Vanderbilt forgets one very important thing. When he was born, he was handed distinction on a platinum platter in the shape of the Vanderbilt name. But Peter Arno, also born into the social register, changed his name and, while still very young, has made it mean much.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Fred Stone's daughter, Dot, is at the Dr's Hospital, having herself a nose operation. In this heat, yet! . . . She is listed under the name of Hatton . . . Chas. Richards, whose wife is Leoda Knapp, once of the Dillingham shows, called. Said to tell you the baby is here, but you must be slipping, because six months ago you said it would arrive on July 13 and that you missed it by 11 hours . . . Ginger Rogers' husband, Jack Pepper, phoned . . . Very upset, he said, over their divorce story in the paper. And that he isn't a drunkard as she charged, or that she ever supported him . . . Charlie Morrison phoned to say you can play the Palace, the last week with Holtz, and if interested to call him back . . . Vincent Valentini says you had better warn your readers that if they want to see the Empire State Building they'd better see it before August 1, as on August 2 it goes on tour.

Why not tell the girl readers that the popular color for the fall will be plum? . . . Incidentally Eleanor Shaler, the actress, is the best dressed woman at Southampton. You should see her in a white eve'gown . . . Vina Delmar's black tresses are graying . . . She wrote "Bad Girl," among other novels, you know . . . A year ago Vina announced that she wouldn't write another novel until the book business improved . . . Well, she's writing one now, although the book biz hasn't! . . . Does it make you happier to learn that Rita White, the blues singer you wrote so much about recently, opens Friday at the Paramount, at five times the salary she got in the night clubs? . . . She phoned to say "Thanx."

Marion Kingston and her husband may reconcile. The Will Osborne rumor is exaggerated, merely an acquaintance . . . Remember Stewart Chase, who is known as the enemy of the machine age? . . . Living like a hermit in the country? . . . Well, passing his place during the week-end I saw him working a huge machine-drill to dig a well! . . . Hank Gowdy, who was the first baseball player to enlist during the war, sends regards; Alex Woollcott was his chauffeur Over There.

It was Muriel Gray and not Graves of the "Follies" who middle-aisled it . . . Incidentally, the girls in the front line all wept furiously because one of them was removed . . . It appears the removed one wasn't as lovely looking, but she had to be put back in Row One when the others wept so . . . Mrs. M. Bamberger was at the Casino for lunch today with her two tiny dogs, named Punch and Judy . . . Well, poor li'l' Punch had the misfortune to start nibbling on a geranium and Mrs. Bamberger washed its mouthie out with soap and water for being so naughty! . . . Mr. Ziegfeld's having his troubles, it seems . . . A Hollywood writer reported seeing his wife, Billie Burke, at a restaurant for celebs. So Mr. Z. wired her about it and she replied: "Haven't been out in public since arrival. Must have been Mrs. Fiske!"

The Prospect in Brooklyn has this amusing billing for two movies: "The Lady Who Dared" —"Meet the Wife." . . . Several women over 30 years of age are furious with you for writing that you are not interested in women over that age . . . They all hit on the same argument—by reminding you that most of your readers are women over 30 . . . I wrote them all telling them it was the humidity . . . Another silly wants to know why people say a cow gives milk when you have to take it from them? . . . The day's heaviest laugh came with a clipping from a London paper which tells of the arrival there of Lee Shubert . . . Mr. Shubert is described in this manner: "A short, sturdy figure, with bronzed features, wearing a monocle!" Anything for a laugh, eh?

Add the Irene Delroy marriage to Bill Austin, and the Marion Dodge divorce from Jack Humbert to the confirmed reports . . . Jim Cherry is back in New York—so prepare for more heart-thumping . . . Bill Daly, who posed for those famous collars, has been signed for a movie in H'wood . . . James Montgomery Flagg discovered pretty Marie Stevens, of the "Follies," and put her on more Life covers than any girl . . . Her money-honey, initialed B. G., had such a time, though. His bank failed and everything went phooey, but Marie went to work for Ziggie and stuck by him . . . Now things are better, he's back and if you want to see a really happy pair watch them at Beatrice Lillie's or at Ethel Bordon's place on week-ends . . . Will you ask Zit to drop my name from his list of Popular Columnists, please? . . . I wouldn't be seen in such company elsewhere, and I resent being listed along with any of youse!

Ran into Dick Simon (Simon and Schuster) . . . They are getting out a book on Hollywood gags. . . What a racket that is! All they have to do is save everybody's columns and bingo—they have a book. . . That's why they have a copyright law in this country. . . Dick told me this one on Hollywood. . . Joe Meilziner, the adroit scenic designer, was out there and a film magnate interviewed him about working for him. . . "How well acquainted are you?" asked the magnate, "with Rembrandt—you know his work?" . . . Jo lost no time in yessing him. . . "Well," replied the movie mogul, "not only do I want from you better paintings—but paintings with more colors!"

Saw the "Follies" again last night . . . Tell Mr. Ziegfeld for me what an improvement it is over the original showing . . . The pace is swifter and there are so many more robust laughs now—and all the flaws have been erased . . . My heart ached for Jack Pearl, whose mother passed on during his performance . . . Of course he wasn't told until the last curtain fell . . . He seemed to be working harder than ever, too, and he was so funny . . . When I realized the shock he was going to have after the show, I got the miseries . . . Saw Harold Ross, of the Nyker, at the "Follies" . . . He's been to Hollywood—and no one knew it . . . I thought you knew everything! . . . He was sitting away—way back in the third row! . . . For things I never knew 'til now: That a Ziegfeld girl is merely a chorus girl—puttin' on the Ritz! . . . I see where Mr. Hoover has barred all scribes from the White House—and no more scoops—because they printed certain things he didn't want published . . . I've got a swell scoop for you to tell him—that he won't be President after the next election—R. C.

119 Child Travelers Aided in Month Here

The Travelers Aid Society of Pittsburgh, each month cares for an average of 119 persons under 16 years of age who come to this city alone, according to the report of Fredericka F. Fred Waring And Band In Penn

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians drew an overflowing audience to the Penn yesterday, and was that overflow warranted, and amply rewarded! You know it, if you know your Fred Waring, and it is likely you do, for this organization of classy syncopators is almost in home territory when it gets into Pittsburgh.

Fred's program includes a number of novelties, but, as always with this orchestra, the appeal of its bill lies in the finish—the artistry, in a word—that marks all of the performance. Whether it is the comic, the grotesque or sheer tantalizing harmony that is the motif of the moment, the selection is marked by characteristics that identify it as the work of an able crew directed by a master hand.

EFFECTS UNUSUAL

Mr. Waring directs the band in a number of selections that are purely instrumental, sings several songs, accompanied by the boys, who support him with unusual effects, and introduces several specialty performers. These include Tonita, dancer from Mexico, who surely can click those castanets and stomp those heels. Evelyn Nair also is a dancer who has pep and comic ability as assets. Most popular, however, are the Three Girl Friends, a trio of harmony singers, who yesterday responded to several encores, one of which included "The Peanut Vendor," by vote of the audience.

"THE NIGHT ANGEL"

On the screen are Nancy Carroll and Frederic March in "The Night Angel." Miss Carroll appears as the daughter of a woman who conducts a shady cabaret in Prague. When the mother is sent to prison the girl is sent to become a student nurse as an alternative of going to reform school. She hates it and she hates March, who as prosecuting attorney, had sent her mother to prison. But he doesn't hate her—far from it. He loves her and she finds that she loves him. Then there is a killing to complicate things. But a happy fade-out after all. It is just passably interesting.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter describes various scenes of interest in the Hearst Metrotone News, in the most amusing and thrilling of which is men without weapons fighting bulls in an arena in a Spanish town.

Special note—Dick Liebert plays the piano accordion. Dick is a real good organist.

Here's a Real First Aid Job; Help for Carol

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

While we are helping out Europe, why don't we do something for King Carol, of Rumania?

He is all tangled up in the Balkan edition of Ziegfeld's Follies. The Queen has grabbed a Reno diploma. And the last cat that looked at the King was a wildcat.

He's got a son named Mike, who used to be king and is now back in the royal reform school. You know, you can't do that to anybody named Mike and get away with it.

Then there's Alfonso, of Spain, in London and Wilhelm in Holland. What they want is for the League of Nations to clip all this moratorium nonsense and declare an old home week.

Smoothing out Europe is a tough job. That continent is being slapped to death by helping hands.

It's all tangled up, and the remedy seems as desperate as the man with the bow legs. The doctor told him he could straighten them out, but he would have to break them first.

So when you hear screams of anguish from the international beauty parlor you will know it is all for the best.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

He had been in movies for years. Just about the best real cowboy out here. The most graceful roper I ever saw. You fans didn't know him, for he didn't get to do much but the rough stuff and the skilled stuff, but when any director wanted anything done right on a horse it was, "Hey, Pedro, do this for this high-priced 'dummy' and he can take the closeup." Great smile, great disposition. You have gone now, Pedro, to where when you do something, your name will be on the bills. "Pedro Leon en persona un muy bueno hombre." You were a Mexican vaquero to some, but a real man to those who knew you. Adios mi amigo. Yours, WILL.

JULIAN FREED, SUED AGAIN

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 18.—(AP)—C. C. Julian, Oklahoma and California oil promoter, held on a federal mail fraud charge, was released from jail yesterday on $25,000 bond, only to learn that other suits have been added to his extensive legal difficulties.

W. W. Cady, former associate of the promoter, has filed suit in District Court for $35,310 on a promissory note. Besides the fraud charge, Julian's affairs are involved in a Federal Court receivership suit.

The Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce attached his airplane for storage charges and a third action filed by the Curtiss-Wright flying service was for an allegedly unpaid airplane repair bill of more than $1,000.

C. C. (Tex) Boren, Julian's bodyguard, and H. D. Topp, accountant for the C. C. Julian Oil and Royalties Company, arrested with Julian, were still in jail.

CENTRAL'S NET SHOWS DROP FOR HALF

Share Earnings Estimate 60 Cents for Six Months; Operating Income Halved

NEW YORK, July 18.—New York Central Railroad Company earned approximately 60 cents a share in the first six months of 1931. This estimate is based on net operating income results so far during current year and allowances for reductions in other income, such as smaller dividends received from Indiana Harbor Belt. In the first half of 1930, Central earned $4.63 a share, against $7.77 in the corresponding period of 1929. There are 4,992,597 shares of Central stock outstanding.

On this basis, New York Central earned $3.18 in the year ended June 30. This would compare with share earnings of $7.21 for the calendar year 1930.

OPERATING INCOME

New York Central net operating income for the first five months amounted to $12,991,363, as compared with $25,823,142 in the corresponding period of last year. It may be assumed from car loading figures that Central's net operating income for June was about the same as it was for May when it totaled $2,852,462. This would bring net operating income for the half year to about $15,843,825, as compared with actual figures of $32,187,225 for the same period in 1930, a decrease of $16,343,400. To this decrease must be added the reduction of $1,616,000 in dividends paid by the Indiana Harbor Belt so far during 1931. This brings the decrease for the first six months from a year ago to $17,959,400.

INTEREST CHARGES UP

Central owns 45,600 shares of I. H. B. stock. So far this year, only 5 per cent has been declared on Indiana Harbor Belt stock against 40 per cent in the like period of 1930. For the full year 1930, this road declared a total of 50 per cent on its stock.

It can be safely estimated that Central interest charges are up as a result of higher bank loans and additional funded debt and that dividends from sources other than the Indiana Harbor Belt will not be as large as in the early part of 1930, with the result that net income for the first six months probably will show a decline of about $20,000,000 from 1930 as compared with net income for the first half year of 1930, which totaled $23,112,700. This would leave a balance for the common stock of $3,112,700, which is equivalent to about 62 cents a share.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, July 18.—Bank clearings this week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, of $7,342,738,000, are 27.3 per cent below those of last year. At New York City clearings of $4,978,211,000 show a decline of 25.6 per cent, while the aggregate at centers outside of New York of $2,364,527,000 is 30.6 per cent smaller.

It is during the mid-summer months that settlements through the banks are the lowest of the year. The amount this year is very much reduced. This in great part reflects the exceptional inactivity that has characterized the commercial situation for many weeks past. There has been a reaction in some leading departments of trade in the past two or three weeks, but this will not appear in the banking returns for some time to come.

Bank clearings for the week, as reported to R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases compared with same period a year ago, follow:

Allegheny Steel Gets Airplane Order

The Allegheny Steel Company has received orders for a total of some 175,000 pounds of its chromium nickel steel alloy, known as Allegheny metal, for use in the construction of gasoline tanks for the new airplane carrier, largest in the world, now being built for the Navy, and for six cruisers including the scout cruisers Portland and Indianapolis. The airplane carrier will have 12 of these tanks; the cruisers two tanks each.

It is the practice to pump sea water into the tanks as the gasoline is drawn off, in order to preserve the trim of the ship. For this reason, the Navy Department specified the use of 18 and eight chromium nickel alloy, which resists the action of salt water. The Blaw-Knox Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., received the contracts for the 20 tanks.

A. T. T. MODIFIES STOCK PLAN

NEW YORK, July 18.—The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has modified its plan by which the public may purchase stock on the installment plan by reducing the amount of monthly payments from $20 to $10 a share, effective July 1. Since September, 1929, the Bell Telephone Securities Company, through which the plan is operated, has required initial payment of $50 a share and subsequent monthly payments of $20 a share on stock purchased by the public on the monthly payment plan. The revised agreement reduces the $20 monthly payment to $10, but retains the $50 initial payment, as well as other conditions of the agreement.

Czechoslovak Glass Plants Cut Output

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Czechoslovak glass factories have been operating only at from 40 to 50 per cent capacity, Assistant Trade Commissioner S. E. Woods reports to the Department of Commerce. The hollow glass concerns have been forced to restrict employment and output. Plate and window glass factories have been suffering from the retarded building season. Exports of all kinds of glass have declined and the outlook is not felt to be encouraging.

Mexican Petroleum Production Higher

MEXICO CITY, July 18.—Petroleum production in Mexico for June was slightly higher than it has been in other months this year except May. According to preliminary June production estimates of the petroleum department of the Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labor, the month's production totaled 2,960,495 barrels, worth commercially 6,094,329 pesos. The department's rectified figures place May production at 3,080,603 barrels, with commercial value of 6,339,211 pesos.

OPPOSE RATE RAISES IN OHIO

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 18.—The traffic bureau of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce has filed a protest with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington against the allowance to railroads of any increase in freight rates in this district.

A brief filed with the commission by J. G. Argetsinger, attorney for the Chamber of Commerce, outlines the competitive advantages in steel now held by Pittsburgh, and urged the commission to refrain from destroying what remains of the Youngstown district's competitive position.

Any increase in freight costs will injure Youngstown's mills and benefit their competitors, particularly those on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, the brief stated.

COAL MEN PLAN RATE FIGHT

CHICAGO, July 18.—(AP.)—Milton E. Robinson, Jr., president of the National Retail Coal Merchants' Association, announced today that the association, after a nation-wide poll of its 5,000 members, has decided to oppose the petition of railroads for a 15 per cent freight rate increase before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The opposition will be organized at a meeting of the merchants' traffic committee in the East sometime before August 31, when the I. C. C. will hear arguments against the proposed boost. The carriers are now presenting their case.

Girl, 15, Confesses Slaying Her Father

JASPER, Tenn., July 18.—(AP.)—Marion County authorities said yesterday Clara Roberts, 15, daughter of a farm tenant, had confessed she killed her father as he slept July 9, because he whipped her the previous day.

The father, J. M. Roberts, was found dead in bed after Clara aroused neighbors. Witnesses at the coroner's inquest said she had shown resentment because her father objected to her going out with boys and punished her for disobeying him.

Sheriff Quits During Office Investigation

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 18.—(AP.)—Sheriff Maurice J. Caldwell, 55, resigned yesterday and the resignation was accepted by County Commissioners.

Commissioners said they and Prosecutor Cameron Meacham had been investigating the sheriff's expense accounts for the past 10 days and indicated a special grand jury would be called to investigate the sheriff's office.

Ill Wife Needs Cash, Bandit Tells Victim

NEW CASTLE, Pa., July 18.—John Rote, proprietor of a confectionery store, was held up by two men who made him lie on the floor while they bound his hands and feet. They secured $50 from the cash register and his pockets. Rote urged them not to take his money, but one of the holdup men said his wife was sick in the hospital and he needed the money.

Anthracite Coal Production Falls Off

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Despite a 5,000,000-ton reduction in production in the two years, there were only three fewer anthracite coal workings in Pennsylvania in 1930 than in 1928.

The number of active breakers, washeries and dredges in 1930 as computed by the Bureau of Mines, were 296, as against 299 two years before. Breakers dropped from 226 to 220 and washeries from 24 to 23, but dredges increased in number from 49 to 53.

Output of the mines dropped from 69,672,425 tons to 64,346,491 tons during the period.

Rail Forecast Recalled. Bull and Bear Markets. Upward Move Possible.

—By Wall Street Spectator—

NEW YORK, July 18.

IN VIEW of the disheartening market action of the rails, seemingly anticipating adverse earnings reports for June, it would not be amiss at this time to go back to sentiment toward this group as previously expressed by usually well informed statistical quarters.

As far back as a month ago, when the prices of most carrier issues were well above current levels, a leading statistical service expressed the belief that gradual accumulation of selected transportation shares would be in order over the next few months, on the assumption that this division of the market will be in the course of preparing for a seasonal gain in earnings during the fall.

Among the issues which this source believed would participate most actively in the next upward swing in the railroad group were: Atchison, Chesapeake and Ohio, New Haven, New York Central, Norfolk and Western, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

A STUDY of the duration of bull and bear markets in past years made by an economic service, discloses that as a rule, the longer a bear market has lasted in the past, the longer the following bull movement lasted.

Since 1889, the durations of bull movements have averaged one and three-quarters times those of the preceding respective bear movements.

On the assumption, therefore, that the present bear market, dating from September, 1929, and omitting the five months of bull market in 1930, has lasted 17 months, a bull move lasting two and one-half years is a possibility.

The only question at hand is when such a sustained advance will begin.

THE LONG TERM possibilities of the following New York City bank stocks are regarded as particularly favorable by Standard Statistics: Bankers Trust, Central Hanover, First National, Guaranty Trust, Bank of Manhattan Company and New York Trust.

STOCK MARKET TONE HEAVY AT START

Trading Extremely Dull With Numerous Leaders Dropping Point or More

NEW YORK, July 18.—(AP)—Stocks were moderately heavy in extremely dull trading today. Early dealings in the financial markets, however, were featured by another break in sterling exchange which sagged half a cent to $4.84⅝ for cables. The German mark, nominally quoted, was up nearly a point.

The stock market was disposed to await word from the Franco-German negotiations at Paris, and the decline in pivotal shares was narrow, representing in part weekend realizing sales. U. S. Steel, American Can, Consolidated Gas, Ingersoll-Rand and Public Service, of New Jersey, lost a point, while Eastman Kodak, Houston Oil and J. I. Case dropped 2 or slightly more.

American Telephone worked against the trend for a time, rallying nearly 2 points, but theft lost much of its gain. Rails, strong yesterday were dull and about steady.

O'Neil Denies Cut By General Tire

Some of the news services and daily newspapers recently gave wide circulation to a report that the General Tire and Rubber Company, together with two other major rubber companies, had reduced prices on their third lines of tires to meet a reported similar mail-order tire price cut.

Referring to this report, William O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber Company, said:

"General is not affected by any change in tire prices on second or third line tires as we manufacture only one high-grade line, consequently reports that we have reduced tire prices following reductions by other companies on third line tires is incorrect."

Labor Body Plans Television Plant

WASHINGTON, July 18.—(AP.)—Examiner Pratt of the Radio Commission yesterday recommended that it grant the Chicago Federation of Labor authority to construct an experimental television station.

In his report, which must be acted upon by the commission, now in recess, Pratt said the applicant "appears to have such a well-worked out plan of experimental research as to assure the construction of the proposed station and the conduct of useful experimental work in the development of the television art."

W. Dodge Corporation reports. For the first half last year the total in the same territory was $2,635,100,000. Figures for the half year indicate that residential building fared best among the major construction classes in both the second quarter and first half, the loss for the first half from the corresponding period of 1930 being 15 per cent.

Wall Street Hears That Drive to Halt Short Sales Is Under Way

Judging by gossip going the rounds in the street there is a well-defined campaign under way intended to discourage "short" sales in the stock market at this time. The big bear "operators" evidently have had rings put in their noses and have been warned to behave to the extent of not pressing anything in the way of large blocks of stock on the market. Reports such as these would, of course, be difficult to confirm, but the action of the market itself, specifically the absence of any evidence of concerted effort for lower prices, at least gives a great deal of credence to such stories. The understanding is that this campaign of moral suasion against short selling has been carried to the floor when the occasion has arisen.

Revival of merger reports involving Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck in a gigantic combination served to stir up renewed activity and considerable strength in the shares of those corporations yesterday. These reports have been dragged out and dusted off time and again during the last two years, and while such a deal is expected ultimately, well-informed interests with Chicago connections do not look for any early developments. The big interests in Sears, Roebuck, it is understood, can see many advantages resulting from such a combine, but according to those professedly well-informed on the situation, the terms will have to be right before anything comes out of intermittent negotiations.

The reduction of $25,000,000 in brokers' loans, reported by the Federal Reserve this week, marks the twelfth decline in a period of 13 weeks. The single interruption came a fortnight back when, after 10 consecutive weekly declines aggregating $443,000,000, an increase of $73,000,000 was reported. Last week the downward trend was resumed with a decline of $24,000,000 and the drop just reported in consequence brings the outstanding total down to within $24,000,000 of the record low of $1,406,000,000, reported for the week ended June 24, last. Quite as interesting is the disclosure that New York banks continued to cut the total of their advances on security collateral direct to non-broker borrowers, the total of such loans dropping by $10,000,000 to a new low figure of $1,703,000,000. The steady decline in the latter total from a figure of around $2,100,000,000 at the beginning of the year lends color to the contention that the banks are demanding such borrowings reduce their debits.

Chemical shares were inclined to lag behind the general market most of yesterday, reflecting sporadic selling pressure which developed in that group from time to time. Part of this selling was no doubt accounted for by the sharp break in prices for sulphate of ammonia in this market, with the current market quoted $27.50 a ton against the recent $32 figure. Weakness was attributed to the breaking up of the European nitrate cartel. Sulphate ammonia is one of the most important sources of synthetic nitrate. Allied Chemical among others was easier after sharing in the market's initial upturn.

Because of the announcement that Procter & Gamble of England has been registered as a private company in that country, there is a growing belief in some domestic quarters that the company is planning an expansion abroad. Another point which has been brought out recently is that a combination of Procter & Gamble with Lever Bros., Ltd., probably will be facilitated as a result of the new incorporation.

The lower prices of National Biscuit in the past week or two have been resulting in quiet accumulation in the stock. There was some bear selling and outside liquidation because of various unfavorable and unfounded rumors which were circulated frequently. Those who have been buying have not been in a hurry and waiting until their prices were reached on recessions. Some of the purchasers expressed their intention of holding the stock for the next major bull movement in the general market on the theory that any sharp general reaction probably would find more resistance in National Biscuit than in many others, while an upward movement would put the stock among the leaders.

Lycoming Hits New Gas Well in Tioga

CORNING, N. Y., July 18.—(AP.)—The twelfth producing gas well in the Tioga district was brought in yesterday by the Lycoming Natural Gas Company in Farmington Township, Pa., about 20 miles south of here.

The well, designated Plate No. 1, had a flow of 3,000,000 cubic feet. It is the westernmost well in the field.

Gas was struck at 4,274 feet and 6 inches in the sand. Presence of water in the well caused suspension of drilling. When the water is cleared from the hole further operations will be carried on in an effort to increase the flow.

New Bond Offerings Total $47,792,000

NEW YORK, July 18.—New bond offerings during the week ended July 17 totaled $47,792,000, compared with $30,613,500 in the previous week, and $85,700,000 in the corresponding week last year.

AVERY ELECTED BY STEEL

CHICAGO, July 18.—Election of Sewell L. Avery, president of United States Gypsum Company, to the board of directors of United States Steel Corporation marks the first time that a representative of preponderantly western interests outside the official ranks has occupied a place on the United States Steel board.

As head of one of the largest companies in the building supplies industry, Mr. Avery's counsel will undoubtedly prove invaluable to United States Steel, particularly with respect to the operations of its important structural steel division. Mr. Avery's election has no other significance.

United States Gypsum Company, of which Sewell L. Avery is president, was organized in 1901 as a merger of 35 small gypsum companies. Mr. Avery became president in 1905. The period of the company's greatest expansion began in 1915. Net income rose from $501,621 in the latter year to a peak of $8,414,117 in 1925, from which point it declined to $5,408,685 in 1930. Earnings between 1926 and 1929 were curtailed by a price war which finally was settled on terms favorable to United States Gypsum.

The company, notable for its conservatism, had assets as of December 31, 1930, of $81,283,286 with net working capital of $15,887,866. At the present time it occupies a dominating position in the gypsum industry with national distribution of its 50 or so products.

Railway President Defends Efficiency

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Criticism that the railroads are not being operated as efficiently or as economically as they might be, was met by President W. R. Cole, of the Louisville and Nashville, in his testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the rate increase hearings with the statement that regardless of any shortcomings which may be pointed out, there are no more efficiently operated railroad systems in existence than those in the United States.

Straus to Close Pittsburgh Office

S. W. Straus & Co., investment bankers, will discontinue their Pittsburgh office, 409 Wood street, Monday, it was announced last night by R. H. Baker, vice president and manager of the local branch. Mr. Baker stated that the entire former staff will continue to serve Pittsburgh, but that it was decided to transfer direction of the sales activities to New York.

Carbonic-Dry Ice Patent Licensed

NEW YORK, July 18.—The Liquid Carbonic Corporation and Dry Ice Corporation of America announce that the 10-year contract entered into by them November 28, 1929, has been terminated as of July 1, last. The Liquid Carbonic Corporation has accepted a license under the patents of Dry Ice Corporation.

Ward Stockholders Studying Merger

CHICAGO, July 18.—The important stockholders of Montgomery Ward & Co., who favor a merger with Sears, Roebuck & Co., are understood to have completed their general study of the situation and are now going over it with a view to determining their next step in the matter.

Vet Who Started Sheridan's Ride Dies at 86

CUMBERLAND, Md., July 18.—Samuel S. Warnick, 86, who bore the message to Gen. Phil Sheridan and started him on his famous 20-mile drive from Winchester during the Civil War, died yesterday at his home here. He was a merchant here and was elected sheriff 40 years ago. Warnick was a member of the 1st Maryland Cavalry when he delivered the dispatch to Sheridan. Henry H. Warnick, of Duquesne, Pa., is a son.

TWO CLUBS GIVE COYNE BACKING

State Senator James J. Coyne was indorsed as a candidate for county commissioner by the Fifth Ward Progressive Club and the Third Ward Voters' League, at a dinner attended by more than 1,000 persons last night in Pythian Temple, Center avenue and Devilliers street.

The indorsing resolution was presented by Representative Walter E. Tucker, Negro member of the Legislature.

Negro speakers included Assistant City Solicitor William M. Randolph, Clarence Webster, president of the Third Ward Voters League; Mrs. Daisy Lampkin, Robert H. Logan, former alderman of the Fifth Ward, and a candidate for another term; former Judge W. C. Hueston, of Indiana, solicitor to the postmaster general, and Attorney Homer Brown.

Other speakers were Senator Coyne, John F. Haggerty and Thomas M. Marshall, candidates for judge of Common Pleas Court; Benjamin Lencher, candidate for judge of County Court; Councilman M. J. Muldowney and Traffic Court Magistrate William J. Soost, Republican city chairman and candidate for Council. Councilman R. J. Alderdice left to fill another engagement before being called.

IMPROVEMENT OF ZOO NEAR

Councilman John M. Phillips and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang today were studying plans for improvement of the Highland Park Zoo following an inspection tour yesterday.

Lang said it was likely legislation would be introduced into Council soon to afford relief for sick animals at the zoo. Three lions face death from rickets. Several other speciments are ill from lack of sunshine and proper housing.

Phillips, former state game commissioner and a recent addition to City Council, has offered a number of suggestions to Lang on how the animals' quarters should be reconstructed. Among his suggestions is that some of the animals be transferred to South Park.

Council President John S. Herron has assured the zoo officials that requests for appropriations to relieve the situation will be acted upon favorably. Cost of contemplated improvements may run into $50,000, Lang said.

NORMAL GAINS ARE SHOWN IN ENROLLMENT

Returns to Indicate If Any District Needs More Than One Machine

Tabulation of voters enrolled in boroughs and townships for the 1931 elections indicates that eligibles in the former total 192,000, in the latter 97,000. Register assessors sat at their polling places last Tuesday and Wednesday.

The increase was normal, considering the territory lost by annexation to larger communities, according to Gilbert C. Cloonan, chief of the county's election bureau.

VOTE MACHINE BASIS

Cloonan awaited the returns as a basis for determining whether any election district would need more than one voting machine. He said 51 of the boroughs' 264 election districts and 13 of the townships' 208 districts would have more than 900 eligibles enrolled. A vast majority of the districts would have about 600 voters, with a few running near to 800.

The law fixes the number of voters for each voting machine at 600 but Cloonan pointed out that experience taught him that not more than 50 per cent of the eligibles in boroughs and townships exercise their voting privilege.

EXTRA DEVICES PLANNED

Cloonan feels confident that one machine will accommodate each district in the boroughs and townships, but explained that, if necessary, he could provide an extra machine in each of the districts with an enrollment approximating 900.

Pittsburgh has 406 election districts and the third-class cities of McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne a total of 54, each with an average of 500 voters.

The county has ordered 1,100 machines, whereas the total number of districts in the county is 932, so there will be an excess of 168 for emergencies, Cloonan explained.

ROAD EMPLOYE KILLED BY AUTO

Robert Elwood, 59, of 457 Ella street, Wilkinsburg, an employe of the State Highway Department, was fatally injured late yesterday when he was struck by an automobile on the William Penn highway, near Unity road.

William Ladden, of Hollidaysburg, Pa., alleged driver of the car, was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office. Elwood was a former Wilkinsburg policeman.

Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas Leslie, of 535 South Winebiddle avenue, was in Mercy Hospital today with a fractured right leg and bruises suffered when his motorcycle collided last night with an automobile driven, police said, by John Hack, 26, of Elm street, Glenshaw, at Morningside avenue, near Bryant street. Hack was arrested.

Nick Tondolia, 21, a hitchhiker of Hollidays Cove, W. Va., lost his right leg late yesterday when a truck on which he was riding sideswiped a pole at California and Island avenues.

Miss Laura Duffy, 20, of 49 North Linwood avenue, Crafton, suffered cuts over the left eye when the automobile in which she was a passenger, and driven by J. W. O'Brien, of 5455 Fair Oaks street, was in collision with a truck of the Liberty Dairy Company in the 1600 block of Crafton boulevard. She was treated at South Side Hospital.

3 Strikers Accused Of Dynamiting Home

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 18.—Three striking miners of the Canonsburg district have been arrested for alleged implication in a dynamiting at the home of Walter Marchenok, blackmith at the Buffalo mine of the Chartiers Creek Coal Company, near Canonsburg. Those held, in default of bail of $2,000 each, are Clarence Spillman, 24, Robert Clark, 31, and Thomas Dubolski, 23, all of Canonsburg.

Traffic Club Plans Dance, Card Party

A dinner dance and bridge will be held by members of the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh Thursday night in the Highland Country Club. The party is the first of a series of social functions planned for the coming season. Benjamin S. Thomas and H. L. McLaughlin have been appointed to complete arrangements for the affair by W. S. Guy, president of the club.

Ex-County Treasurer To Seek Nomination

Edward D. Freibertshauser, former Republican chairman of the Fourteenth Ward, has taken out petitions to be signed by voters favoring him for the Republican nomination for county treasurer. Friebertshauser held that office from 1916 to 1919, inclusive.

Mayor Hails Al Capone As 'Perfect Gentleman'

CHICAGO, July 18. — (AP.)— The Herald and Examiner said today that Alphonse Capone had been taking a vacation at Benton Harbor, Mich., apparently with the idea of resting up before he is committed to a federal prison for violating the income tax and liquor laws. Capone pleaded guilty in Federal Court to the charges, but is to have a hearing July 30 before sentence is passed.

The newspaper quoted Mayor Marvin Stouck, of Benton Harbor, as saying he knew Capone was in that city and as adding:

"He's a perfect gentleman. I've met him and talked with him. He and his men are peaceful and quiet, and I know our citizens have no objections to his presence."

RED ARROW FINALE

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Longfellow never dreamed when he wrote "The Arrow and the Song" that some day its metaphor would bob up in KDKA studios . . . but, figuratively, hasn't the Red Arrow Quartet done a good job of shooting arrows of song into the air—arrows that have been found later in the heart of a friend? . . . Frank Weis boys have made thousands happy and we note with sorrow that the quartet gives its last summer radio concert on KDKA at 8:30 tonight, not to return until late this fall . . . as usual tonight's program is a repertoire of special arrangements . . . we admire those Red Arrow boys for their originality . . . Healey and Cross on WCAE at 9:30 and "Sisters of the Skillet" on the Welcome Party for WIBA on KDKA at midnight, are good dials . . . William Steinke, who plays the role of "Jolly Bill" in "Jolly Bill and Jane" on KDKA weekdays, is guest announcer for the Peasant Band on WCAE at 8. . . . Alexander Dumas' interesting "Camille" is the Show Boat attraction on WJAS at 10.

Question a Day:

Here's a question on a question. What question are you asked most frequently?—Lillian Lapp, Homestead.

Answer—Well, most people want to know whether Seth Parker and Mayor Matt Thompkins aren't the same people. Even after we say they aren't, the question keeps bobbing up in the mail every day. We answer perhaps 75 questions daily. Sometimes they are very difficult and require much research.

The Gloom Chasers' repeated gag, "Schultz is dead," had a queer application downtown yesterday.

An insistent cab driver shouted "Taxi" at Howdy Clark every few paces. Finally, Howdy turned sharply on the driver and hissed, "Schultz is dead." The cabbie removed his hat, bowed respectfully and drove off.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, July 18—More people will cup their ears to the meeting of Twenty Grand and Mate today, we'll wager our white spats, than heard the recent ring battle in Cleveland.

And they shouldn't be disappointed in the microphonic story from Chicago. Not with Clem McCarthy on the job. McCarthy blends accuracy with a glow of excitement. Between you and me and the armchair you can't ask for anything more. The result should be contented listeners. And contented listeners are worth their weight in gold to the men behind the microphones.

The best experting yet achieved on the air waves has been recorded this summer. Experts on horse racing, on golf and tennis and crew racing have faced the loudspeakers, conveying authority and enthusiasm, showing up the British sports announcers who are authoritative but not enthusiastic. The British still regard a sports event as placidly as they do a soap box harangue in Hyde Park.

* * *

The new influence in sports description on our radios can be traced to the M. McCarthy. While not as rapid a talker as McNamee or Husing, his description is smooth and continuous, gathering speed and excitement as it nears its climax, as of course, it should. And we have yet to catch him in a slip of the tongue. When he talks of Twenty Grand, he means Twenty Grand and not some other nag.

* * *

We have yet to hear Tris Speaker broadcasting baseball from Chicago. Reports say he is satisfactory. It seems to us the job is better suited to a more skillful gabber, some one who has built up a reputation as a sideline coach or an umpire baiter or a razzer of pitchers. Maybe Ty Cobb would fit the bill. Perhaps, the best baseball description will come from those who write the games for the gazettes—such fellows as Ford Frick, Bozeman Bulger, Hughie Fullerton, Bill Slocum, Chilly Doyle, John Kieran, Fred Lieb.

LARGEST PLATE MILL BUILT BY UNITED

Plant Containing Huge Machinery Erected For Illinois Steel

The United Engineering and Foundry Company has completed construction of the largest continuous plate mill in the world. It was completed within a period of one year, probably a record time time for the building of such a massive piece of machinery. It is understood that the mill was made for the Illinois Steel Company.

It is claimed to be the largest mill installation ever made in the world for the rolling of any steel product. The mill contains the largest number of huge pieces of equipment in any existing plant. The plates are manipulated entirely by mechanical means. The human hand never touches the rolled product. Motors of approximately 30,000 horsepower are required to operate the mill.

WORLD'S HEAVIEST

It is possible to roll plates continuously up to 92 inches in width and a finished ribbon of steel is possible up to 140 feet. The delivery speed of the plate mill varies from about 350 to 700 feet per minute. The total length of the mill from the soaking pits to the finishing end is 2,100 feet, or more than one-third of a mile.

Some of the outstanding characteristics of the installation are as follows: It is the heaviest plate mill in the world. The vertical edging mill, a component part, is the largest ever built. The gear drive for the roughing stand probably is the largest ever attempted. There are two gears 21 feet 8 inches in diameter, with teeth six feet in length across the face.

ELECTRICAL CONTROL

Continuous operation is carried out in this mill to the greatest degree. Starting with an ingot, the steel passes through a universal slabbing mill. The mill is so arranged that the finished plate can be rolled in one heat from the ingot, or by slabs being reheated in continuous slabbing furnaces.

The entire mill is under electric control, both for controlling the thickness of the plate and the operations of the side guides and looping apparatus. The driving motors are of adjustable speed.

WEATHER AIDS RETAIL TRADE

Not much change is noted in the local business situation, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Continued high temperatures are stimulating demand for seasonal merchandise, but are holding back sales of fall merchandise, advance orders being very light thus far.

Wholesale dry goods have been moving rather slowly, total sales being well below the volume of a year ago. Manufacturers of sanitary products report the volume of business at about 25 per cent lower than a year ago. But little change is noted in electrical lines, although some fair sized orders have been placed for heavy equipment.

Production of crude oil shows a rather sharp increase, while prices paid to producers are at the lowest level in a number of years. The situation in the bituminous coal fields show but little change, with the strike continuing and demand still slow.

Little improvement is noted in collections, the average still being slow.

At Air Brake

PROF. S. W. DUDLEY

DUDLEY JOINS AIR BRAKE

Accepting the post of assistant to the vice president, S. W. Dudley, professor of mechanical engineering at Yale University, has joined the staff of Westinghouse Air Brake Company. Prof. Dudley's connection with the local company will be in an engineering advisory capacity which will permit him to retain his chair at Yale. He will also continue his many other activities.

Prof. Dudley is a graduate of Yale University. Following the completion of his course at Yale and a brief service as a faculty member, he entered the employ of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company in 1905 as a special apprentice. From this beginning his rise was rapid. Advancing through many positions of importance in the Air Brake organization, Prof. Dudley became chief engineer in 1914. This position he held until 1921 when he was induced to accept his present post at Yale.

During the period of Prof. Dudley's previous connection with the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, he played a prominent part in many outstanding air brake developments, and his many writings on transportation subjects brought national recognition.

PLANS PLANT EXPANSION

NEW YORK, July 18.—Further building expansion at the main plant of International Business Machines Corporation is indicated in the announcement of plans for a new office building and the acquisition of three plots of ground adjacent to the factory, which will be reserved for other future expansion.

The new structure will be the third addition to the Endicott plant undertaken within a year, a $300,000 addition having been completed to provide additional manufacturing space and a small addition for metal plating operations having just been put in operation. It will be erected directly in front of the present building group and none of the newly acquired ground will be required for the site.

National Electric Buys Properties

NEW YORK, July 18.—National Electric Power Company has acquired control of the former electric, water and natural gas subsidiaries of Atlantic Public Utilities, Inc., from the reorganization committee in accordance with their plan of reorganization.

Oil Industry Plans Reform Of Marketing System

By GEORGE B. SNYDER

A MOVEMENT FOR THE REFORM of the distribution system of the oil industry is getting under way. The problem of excessive production has received a great amount of attention during recent years but oil men are beginning to realize that they have made some serious mistakes in the marketing end of their business. A few of the far seeing executives are taking the first steps to correct this condition.

A drive on any main highway quickly discloses a picture of utterly wasteful and unnecessary competition which sooner or later will prove to be a severe burden to the industry. Gasoline stations crowded together and stations handling the products of a half dozen different makers are the most obvious representatives of foolish competition.

With refiners holding tremendous stocks of crude oil and finished products, there has been a natural tendency to overdevelop marketing facilities in order to keep the deluge of raw materials moving into consumption. But the oil companies are finding that distribution is costing them too much and that their investment in retail marketing facilities is too high.

New Policy Adopted

THE SHELL ORGANIZATION is one of the companies which has realized the mistakes being made by the industry. In most parts of the country this organization has avoided locating stations close to competitors. It has taken a thumbs down attitude on the practice of independent station operators installing pumps dispensing gasoline made by other organizations.

Shell has found that it is cheaper to secure distribution through stations which are not bunched together and through dealers concentrating on the distribution of a single brand. Other companies are making changes in their policies which eventually will establish the distribution of a major share of the oil products on a more economical basis.

Standard of Indiana

THE STANDARD OIL Company of Indiana has just recognized that it is time to change its distribution methods. This company has discontinued installing, loaning or leasing service station equipment to resellers. Officials declare that this action has been taken because the industry recognizes that the leasing of equipment encourages the multiplying of retail outlets far beyond consumer needs.

Under competitive conditions it has been customary for oil companies or wholesalers to provide retailers with most of their equipment. By discontinuing the practice Standard of Indiana is attempting to place its wholesale business on a basis of straight commodity selling.

Other Companies May Follow

MANY OIL MEN believe that other leading companies will be compelled to follow the lead of these organizations. The development of a large volume of distribution is important to the oil companies but they are finding that fighting for important street corners and supplying retailers whose distribution is inadequate is too expensive a proposition for an industry with the reduced margin of profit of the oil trade.

GLASS INDUSTRY IN DULL PERIOD

Distribution of flat glass apparently has settled down to the usual warm weather routine, according to American Glass Review. The slight improvement noted last week has not been continued and market conditions are lethargic. While consumer demand is reflected immediately in orders to factories, the volume is not great. Inquiries are numerous and there seems to be a feeling that consumption possibilities this fall are excellent.

There are quite a few indications that the flat glass trade generally is looking forward to increased volume in the fall. While production at the moment is greater than factory shipments, output is curtailed and there are no large stocks in the hands of either manufacturers or distributors.

ONTARIO GOLD OUTPUT UP

TORONTO, July 18.—Ontario gold production in June was valued at $3,553,300, a new high monthly record for 1931, comparing with $3,346,147 in May and $2,952,110 in June, 1930. Kirkland Lake Camp had record output of $1,886,223 in gold from 144,415 tons of ore milled, while Porcupine Camp produced gold valued at $1,584,020 from 264,823 tons of ore, which indicates value per ton was more than twice as great in Kirkland Lake as in Porcupine area. Individual leading mines in order of output are Lake Shore, Hollinger, Teck Hughes, McIntyre, Dome, Wright and Hargreaves.

SCHACHT SEEN AS MAN FOR CRISIS

Retired Reichsbank Head Held Fitted to Restore German Financial Order.

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Statesmanship at this stage of the world's history must be largely economic, rather than merely political.

The acute problems of the world relate closely to the struggle of the average man for a livelihood.

In Germany's present crisis, the country has a human ace in the hole in Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, retired president of the Reichsbank. Schacht is the most brilliant financier in Germany, and should be mobilized at once for public service.

Mr. Rukeyser

When Dr. Schacht took control of the Reichsbank in 1924 after the pre-war mark had utterly collapsed, Germany's financial status was, to say the least, equally as precarious as now. The country needed a new unit of currency and a fresh basis of international credit. The rehabilitation of Teutonic post-war finances was largely the personal achievement of Schacht, who ruled with an iron hand. He dictated to merchants, manufacturers and bankers, and ruthlessly rationed credits.

He was astute enough to see also that foreign borrowing was far from an unmixed blessing.

Dr. Schacht, who combined academic scholarship with practical ability, threw up his job in protest after the Hague conference in 1929, at which the Young plan was modified at the behest of of Philip Snowden. British chancellor of the exchequer, who believed that France had fared disproportionately well to Britain in the revision of reparation terms. The net result was a concession to Britain, which placed an additional burden on Germany. Schacht had the courage of his convictions, and threw up his post.

In the light of present conditions, which have resulted in virtually the temporary abandonment of the Young plan, the prophetic insight of Dr. Schacht has been demonstrated by events. Other central bank leaders, including the sagacious Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and the late Benjamin Strong, who was head of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, had the highest respect for Mr. Schacht's sagacity and economic knowledge.

If Germany is serious about applying the doctrine of self-help in the present emergency, it would seem the part of wisdom to elevate Dr. Schacht to a post of economic leadership in Germany.

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT AT 32%

Usual Summer Dullness Is Accentuated This Year; September Spurt Seen

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel ingot production this week was at about 32 per cent, recording a slight gain, not indicative of a general trend as in the preceding week some departments or plants having closed for the holiday simply remained closed for repairs. None of the steel companies has ground, from the present flow of orders, to expect increased production in the next couple of weeks, and at least one good-sized interest is faced with a decrease as some long-term orders are now being completed.

July as a whole may run about 10 per cent under December in ingot production, which would be in line with seasonal precedent. This would mean, of course, that steel shows no gain or loss attributable to any long range swing in general business.

CAPACITY DOUBLED

The usual summer dullness in steel is accentuated and makes a poor comparison with the average activity of the first half and particularly with the March peak. August is expected to run about the same as this month, perhaps a shade better, with marked improvement by the middle of September.

Assuming a mild autumn revival, the year's ingot production would be about 28,000,000 tons, and assuming a good-sized revival, but only of seasonal character, the total might run 30,000,000 tons, while anything beyond that would be due to substantial improvement in the general economic situation. In 1930 production was just under 40,000,000 tons, and in 1929, the record year by a large margin, it was just under 55,000,000 tons. In 1912 and 1913, by far the biggest years before the war, it was 30,000,000 tons. Comparison by tonnage makes a more favorable showing than comparison by percentage operating rates, because capacity has so greatly increased, having fully doubled in 18 years, since the middle of 1913.

TIN MILLS ACTIVE

Steel consuming lines of miscellaneous character are expected to buy more freely and furnish the greater part of such increase in steel demand as may occur in the next few months. It is thought that no little business has been held back on account of excitement over financial conditions abroad.

As usual in a depression, tin plate is the most active line, mills running at 65 per cent, while wire and strips are at the bottom of the list, not to mention rails, as they are now practically out of season.

"Public Improvements Promote Progress"
GEORGE WESTINGHOUSE BRIDGE, spanning the wide Turtle Creek Valley, 216 feet above the stream, is the critical link of the Lincoln Highway Cut-off; which cut-off leaves the present Lincoln Highway route near the borough line of East McKeesport, rejoining the present Lincoln Highway near the intersection of Electric Avenue and Ardmore Boulevard in North Braddock Borough; from which intersection two separate one-way traffic arteries to Wilkinsburg in the vicinity of Rebecca Street will be available by the construction of a new two-mile stretch of road paralleling present Ardmore Boulevard.
This improvement, 5.4 miles long, is shorter by 0.8 mile than the present route; it eliminates Turtle Creek hill with its long 9 per cent grade, dangerous curves and heavy traffic congestion at the foot of the hill. It will relieve the heavy traffic congestion through the narrow and congested business and industrial streets of Turtle Creek and East Pittsburgh. A conservative estimate of time saved by the new route is 30 minutes.
The Westinghouse Bridge will consist of five reinforced concrete open spandrel ribbed arches. The central arch, with a span of 460 feet center to center of piers, will be the longest concrete arch span yet built in the United States, and doubtless will be Allegheny County's most impressive bridge. The total length of the bridge is 1524 feet. It will carry a 42-foot roadway and two 7-foot sidewalks over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Union Railroad, and over Turtle Creek and Braddock Avenue in East Pittsburgh.
The total estimated cost of the bridge is $1,750,000.00. It will be completed in the latter part of 1931.

Know Your City!
Few cities have paid so much attention to instruction in manual training and the industrial arts as has Pittsburgh, through the Carnegie Institute of Technology and similar institutions. In these classes, students receive training in every branch of industry and in all of the building trades, being instructed in well-regulated courses leading to proficiency. The instruction does not follow the regular text-book method, for the practical application of the knowledge is characteristic of these courses, which distinguishes institutions in Pittsburgh in this branch of learning. Students attend these classes from all over the Pittsburgh District. Pittsburgh thus enjoys an enviable position among other cities of the country, in respect to its facilities for scientific and technical instruction in engineering and business administration, as well as regular university training.

HE'S A FIGGER FILBERT . . . AND HE DEALS IN LARGE NUMBERS, TOO

You'd hardly pick out a dentist as the man to operate the scoreboard at a big league baseball park. But, as Ripley says, believe it or not, this is the case at Forbes Field, where Dr. Hubert F. Garver, B. S. C. and D. D. S., is the man behind the scenes who keeps you posted on balls and strikes, the batter's number, the outs, the score by innings of all games, etc. Dr. Garver, 24, and a lifelong resident of the Oakland district, is a recent graduate of the dental school of the University of Pittsburgh and plans to open his office and hang out his shingle soon. He's also jerked sodas during the off-season. For nine years he has been the engineer of the scoreboard and he's seen service in two world series, that of 1925 with the Washington Senators and the 1927 series with the New York Yankees. Now he's breaking in a young man to be his successor. A telephone line to the home dugout helps him keep straight on what's going on and a complicated lot of balancing weights, levers and other machinery and a veritable nightmare of numbers all are part of his stock in trade. He has his tough moments, too. For instance, one day recently, he ran out of 3s, what with 17 of 'em already up on the board. That was a pinch, but he got out of it by substituting a 4 and a 2 in the early innings of one game, after the fans had become familiar with it, to total 6, and thus made two more 3s available. Oh, yes, indeed, a fellow has to keep his wits about him on such a job.

BUC SHORTSTOP SHINING ON DEFENSE

BY NO MEANS the least factor in the improved showing of the Pirates during recent weeks has been the smooth work of Tommy Thevenow at shortstop. It was not until near midseason that Thevenow found his true fielding stride, but he must now be rated one of the most valuable Buccaneer regulars, and though his batting average of .152 is among the lowest in the league, his strong defensive play has had much to do with the success of the local club in winning 10 of its last 16 games.

Tommy Thevenow

No team can keep its head above water without a good shortstop, and in his present form Tommy leaves nothing to be desired in the Pirate defense at the most difficult position on the field. In fact, from a purely defensive viewpoint, he is giving as good service as any shortfielder in the game, recalling his best days with the Cardinals and Phillies. He has given the left side of the infield a balance it lacked for a long time, and his strong support has played no small part in aiding the pitchers to hold enemy clubs in check.

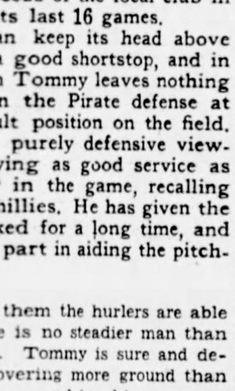
WITH A RELIABLE shortstop behind them the hurlers are able to work with greater confidence, and there is no steadier man than Thevenow on the job anywhere at present. Tommy is sure and dependable on all sorts of batted balls, is covering more ground than in the spring and is a master as taking throws and touching runners, as well as at starting or serving as the middle man in double plays.

But Thevenow's strongest point is his throwing. His pegging arm not only has plenty of power, but for accuracy he is a shade ahead of any other shortstop now roaming Heydler parks. It's a happening out of the ordinary when he makes a throw that isn't pretty close to being perfect. All around, Thevenow is a big help to the Bucs on defense, and his smooth, smart shortstopping is aiding in another direction by hastening the schooling and development of Howdy Grosskloss at second base.

IF THE PHILS had left Jim Elliott at home, the Pirates might have made it six straight in the series just ended. Both of the defeats they suffered were administered by the big lefthander, and in the two full games he pitched he gave the locals only one run and nine hits.

It was Remy Kremer's usual ill-luck to draw the starting assignment against Elliott on both occasions. The Pirate veteran's fielding support was all that could be asked, brilliant fielding support helping him yesterday in particular, but in the matter of offensive backing Remy got little more than nothing, his mates scoring only one run behind him in the 18 innings.

ELLIOTT'S LATEST VICTORY, his thirteenth of the season, kept him at the head of the National League pitchers in number of games won this year. The only hurlers in either league who have won more games than Elliott are Lefty Grove with 19, and George Earnshaw with 15, and the only other flinger who has won as many is Wes Ferrell, who also registered his thirteenth yesterday. Rube Walberg has won 12, and Fred Fitzsimmons, Burleigh Grimes and Ed Brandt 11 each.



Charley Retzlaff

FIGHT FANS ARE more strongly than ever of the opinion that Charley Retzlaff will bear watching as a possible heavyweight championship candidate of the future, in view of his success in knocking out Ralph Ficucello in the second round of his eastern debut.

Not that Ficucello ranked as more than an ordinary fighter, but Retzlaff impressed the spectators by the cool and deliberate manner in which he went about his work, whereas many a young fighter suffers from stage fright in his first New York appearance.

WITH POISE AND coolness added to his stock in trade, Retzlaff, who is only 23, appears to need but experience to take him somewhere. He is strong, rangy, tough and game, and a murderous puncher who carries dynamite in both hands. He is unbeaten in 33 fights and has won 29 of them by the knockout route.

Wilbur Wood took a poll of eastern boxing men as to what they considered the odds against Charley's ever winning the big title. The estimates ranged from 5 to 1 by Pa Stribling and Tommy Furey to 1,000 to 1 by Jersey Jones.

WITH 19 VICTORIES already to his credit, against only two defeats, Lefty Grove, who has just won 10 straight on top of an earlier streak of 9 in a row, has some big possibilities in the 68 games the A's have yet to play. For one thing he appears certain to beat his own record of 28 wins in a season, and for another he may be the first major league pitcher in 11 years to capture 30 games. No pitcher in the American League has won 30 games in a season since Jim Bagby landed 31 for the Indians in 1920.

CHICAGO, July 18. — (AP.)—Unless all the dope was wrong, all Twenty Grand had to do was gallop a mile and a quarter today to become the undisputed 3-year-old champion thoroughbred of the season, and win $73,650 more for Mrs. Payne Whitney in the third renewal of the Arlington Classic.

While not as certain as death and taxes, Twenty Grand was as much of a cinch as a horse could be. His trainer, Jimmy Rowe, Jr., said the big horse was never more fit and that the prize money for the world's richest 3-year-old event would be stacked up on the same pile with the purses for the Woods Memorial Stake, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes and the Dwyer Stakes.

Twenty Grand was a prohibitive overnight favorite and was bound to remain the choice regardless of weather conditions. With his stablemate, St. Brideaux, the big horse was quoted at 3 to 5, with A. C. Bostwick's Mate, the only horse to conquer Twenty Grand this year, the second choice at 4 to 1. Spanish Play, the West's hope for a surprise victory, was quoted at 8 to 1, and Joey Bibb was 15 to 1. The remaining two in the field, Sun Meadow and Sir Ashley, were down at 20 and 25 to 1, respectively.

Twenty Grand and Mate were called upon to shoulder top weight of 126 pounds.

With fair weather a crowd of from 60,000 to 75,000 was expected. The race will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company.

The scene was the Phillies' clubhouse as the downcast Quakers, defeated four times in a row, began to dress for the last battle of the series with the Pirates.

When a club drops four in succession in pleasant weather, its members are grouchy, so you might visualize how the Phils felt yesterday just before the battle in the sweltering heat of the diamond.

Manager Burt Shotton, a good sport, but a tough loser, was the first to break the humid silence.

"Well, Jim—it looks like it's up to you," exclaimed Burt, addressing himself to Jim Elliott, the Herculean lefthander who blanked the Pirates in the opening game.

"Tell you what I'll do, Jim," continued Shotton. "If you go

WASHINGTON, July 18—Griff said to me today, "Do you get paid for those articles you write?"

I said, "Yes, $5 a word, just like Coolidge and Kipling."

Nick Altrock

Griff said, "I object to your composing literature on the ball club's time."

I said, "You're wrong. I don't write my articles till just before I go to bed."

Griff said "Some of them read as if you'd stayed out all night."

I said, "I admit my articles don't read as funny as some of your contracts but as a columnist you'll notice I made Coolidge quit."

Griff said, "One year was enough for Coolidge's articles. You deserve life for yours."

U. S., BRITISH NETMEN CLASH IN DOUBLES

Edgewood, Beaver County Clash in Feature P. T. A. League Match

HONORS EVEN AFTER FIRST CUP TILTS

BULLETIN.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, Paris, July 18.—(AP.)—The American doubles combination of George Lott and John Van Ryn romped into the lead, two sets to one, in the third match of the Anglo-American Davis Cup series today. They won the first two sets, 6-1, 6-3, but George Hughes and Fred Perry, playing for England, won the third set, 6-4.

PARIS, July 18.—(AP.)—As go the doubles so may go the inter-zone Davis Cup tennis finals between the United States and Great Britain.

The opening singles matches yesterday resulted in an even split and thus cast a heavy burden on the two doubles teams, George Lott and John Van Ryn for the United States and Fred Perry and George Patrick Hughes for Great Britain.

In the event of another even split in the last two singles matches tomorrow — and that seems entirely possible the country capturing the doubles today would win the series and gain the right to challenge France for the cup.

It took some smashing tennis by Frank Shields to enable the United States to end the first day of play all square. Sydney B. Wood had gone down to defeat before the accurate play of Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, British stylist, in the opening encounter, 2-6, 6-0, 8-6, 7-5, but Shields evened the count by trouncing Perry, 10-8, 6-4, 6-2.

The singles pairings will be reversed tomorrow with Wood meeting Perry and Shields playing Austin.

HELEN, DOEG IN FINALS

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Mrs. George W. Wightman gained the final round of the Longwood Bowl invitation doubles play yesterday by defeating Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal., and Baroness Levi, New York, 6-3, 6-1. The victors meet Sarah and Mianne Palfrey.

Champion Johnny Doeg and Ellsworth Vines, clay court titlists who became finalists in the singles play, won the right to clash in another final. Doeg and W. F. Coen, Jr., Kansas City, romped over Dr. William Rosenbaum and Fred C. Baggs, New York veterans, 6-2, 7-5, 7-5, in one doubles semi-final and Vines teamed with his Californian neighbor, Keith Gledhill, for a 6-4, 8-6, 6-4 win over Jan Kozeluh, Czechoslovakia, and Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Y.

BOUTS MARKED BY KNOCKOUTS

The Curtis-Wright Athletic Club staged six amateur boxing bouts last night at the Bettis Field airport. Three knockouts were scored during the evening's festivities. Andy Kosel, Valley Boxing Club, stopped Kid Sterling, unattached, in two rounds.

The Curtis-Wright A. C. is going to stage amateur fights every Friday night. The summary:

112-pound class—Paul Monac, Homestead Library A. C., defeated Fred Coopie, unattached, 3 rounds.

118-pound class—Andy Kosel, Valley Boxing Club, knocked out Kid Sterling, unattached, 2 rounds. Time 2:05.

135-pound class—Joe Tanor, Valley Boxing Club, knocked out Joe Dodas, unattached, 2 rounds. Time 1:40.

160-pound class—John Rose, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Edward Jacobson, Krah A. C., 3 rounds.

MOE BATTLES M'NAUGHTON

PORTLAND, Ore., July 18.—(AP.)—Two Portland youngsters, Don Moe and Malcolm MacNaughton, meet in the final of the western amateur golf championship here today. Moe defeated the defending champion, Johnny Lehman, Chicago, 4 and 3, and MacNaughton nosed out Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, 2 and 1, in the 36-hole semi-finals yesterday.

STAR IN POLO GAME TODAY

HOWARD ADAMS

Adams, former Yale University polo star, will be seen in action this afternoon with the Pittsburgh Polo Club team when it meets representatives of the Pittsburgh Hunt at the new polo field on the Squaw Run road. Among the local players who will participate in the game are Capt. Bliss Flaccus, Vose Babcock, George Vang, C. Flaccus, J. McCreery and David I. McCahill, Jr., who will captain the Hunt Club team.

BUCS, BRAVES IN TWIN BILL

out there and knock those Pirates off this afternoon, you won't have to go to Cincinnati at all. You can go over to dear old Terre Haute and stay there until the club gets to St. Louis next week. What d' ya say, Jim?"

"You're faded on that one, Burt," retorted Jim—"Socko, get a time table and see what time I can catch a train for Terre Haute."

So today, folks, Big Jim is spending a nice vacation on the banks of the Wabash; the big lefthander is leading the National League in victories with 13; the Pirate winning streak is "busted," and the club is right back where it was as regards southpaw pitching. The score of the final game was 4 to 1.

And to further heckle the Buccos, Bill McKechnie came to town this morning, leading his snappy Braves, and bringing along at least two available lefthanders for the doubleheader of this afternoon. The Buccos and Braves are slated to put on a bargain bill, the first battle to get under way at 2 o'clock.

Bill generally has Ol' Tom Zachary ready for the Pirates, although Tom took a shellacking from the Buccos in Boston the last time he challenged the Freebooters. Zachary and Bill Sherdel may work in the dual attraction this afternoon. Heinie Meine and Glenn Spencer will twirl for the home team.

BECKLEY BOWS TO FAIRMONT

FAIRMONT, W. Va., July 18.—Beckley's nine came near to being blanked here yesterday when Fairmont won, 7-1, in their Middle Atlantic League battle.

Cumberland won over Charleston, 7-2, at Cumberland, and Youngstown defeated Wheeling, 7-5, at Wheeling.

The Huntington-Scottdale and Clarksburg-Jeannette tilts were postponed because of rain.

BASS' SISTER DIES

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—(AP.)—Anna Bass, 17-year-old sister of Benny Bass, who lost his junior-lightweight championship to Kid Chocolate here Wednesday night, died yesterday of spinal meningitis. Bass went into the ring to defend his title with the knowledge that his sister was dying. As soon as he lost the fight and his sister had died up his wounds, Bass went to the hospital and remained there much of the time.

POLO STAR DIES

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 18.—(AP.)—Col. Willie Y. Morris, Army polo star, injured by a fall of his pony in a match at Meadow Brook Country Club on Saturday, died last night in Nassau County Hospital.

CARNEGIE OFF TONIGHT

Ollie Carnegie, Dormont slugger, will leave tonight for Hagleton, Pa., to join the club of that town in the New York-Pennsylvania League.

Long's Sport Comment

and it hasn't been done in the National since 1916, when Grover Alexander bagged 33 for the Phillies.

JACK ONSLOW, former Pirate coach, now serving in a similar capacity for the Phillies, expressed the opinion that the Bucs would find the Braves even more troublesome than usual in the series starting with a doubleheader today. He said Bill Urbanski, new third baseman from Montreal, has strengthened Bill McKechnie's club with an added punch at the plate as well as in a denfensive way.

The Braves broke even in four games at Cincinnati in their first series on the present western trip. The last three games resulted in shutouts, of which the Reds won two. The series was an unusual one also from the standpoint of light scoring, as the runs made by both clubs in the four contests totaled only 13, five of which were registered in the finale yesterday.

NO RACE THAT has a horse like Mate among its starters can be termed a walkover for even Twenty Grand, so that Mrs. Payne Whitney's star may have to extend himself to keep up his winning record in the rich Arlington Classic at Chicago today, worth $73,650 to the victor.

However, it appears that the harder the going the better Twenty Grand runs, and if he has regained the form he showed prior to the injury of a lumbar muscle recently he ought to come home in front, with Mate the only rival he has to fear.

Mrs. Payne Whitney

IN OTHER WORDS Twenty Grand's success today seems to depend solely on the question of condition, and turf followers in general are of the opinion that his owner would not have consented to his being started if he were not in tip-top shape. The decision of the Tennessee Stable not to start Vander Pool may be another indication that Twenty Grand is right. Vander Pool has won every one of his 14 races in a year and a half and has a chance to equal the record of Colin, the only thoroughbred in American turf history that ever won 15 in succession. His owners, after a look at Twenty Grand in his workouts, evidently concluded that a race in which he was entered would not be a very favorable opportunity to keep up any winning streaks, so Vander Pool will not be among the starters. The average fan can't see where there is any great glory in a record made by picking soft spots.

BUCS RELEASE VANUSEK

John Vanusek, young southpaw pitcher of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today was handed his unconditional release.

Vanusek, who made the spring training trip to Paso Robles, Cal., with the Pirates, had been sent under option to the Binghamton Club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League, earlier in the season. That team sent him back to the Pirates last week.

The Pirates signed him as a free agent. He bats and throws left-handed. His home is in Minneapolis.

POLO FINAL TODAY

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 18.—(INS.)—International polo will make its third and final appearance in Chicago when Santa Paula, Argentina, and Old Aiken, Long Island, meet this afternoon in the third game of their series. A tight battle was in prospect. Old Aiken, with better riding and superior team work won the first game and the hard-hitting Argentines won the second.

GIRL, 14, SETS WORLD SWIM RECORD

NEW YORK, July 18.—Conceding one of the most remarkable upsets in the history of women's aquatics, water sports experts are hailing today Kathrine Rawls, 14-year-old Florida youngster who set a new world mark on 300 meters at the national outdoor meet last night.

Eleanor Holm, defending champion, could do no better than second. The new record is 4:45 4-5, clipping four seconds from Miss Holm's mark of 4:49 4-5.

FIRST MAJOR MEET

Competing in her first major meet, the Florida girl set the pace from the outset, and finished 25 yards in advance of the Brooklyn champion.

Another world mark is anticipated tonight as a result of Helene Madison's impressive triumph in her 1,000-yard swim against time, in which she smashed the former world standard, which also has stood for four years, by nearly 1 minute 16 seconds. The Seattle flash slid through the water to a new time of 13:23 4-5. She is likely to lower her own record for 880 yards tonight.

DEFENDS CROWN

In the 220-yard breast stroke, Margaret Hoffman, of Scranton, Pa., is likely to defend her championship.

The outdoor championships will be concluded at the Bronx Beach resort this evening, with the exception of the fancy diving championship from the 10-foot board, which will be held at the Olympic Bowls, Long Beach, tomorrow.

Josephine McKim, former Pittsburgher, free style champion before Helene Madison came along, swam a great anchor leg to give the W. S. A. team a large margin at the finish of the relay. Los Angeles was second. The Women's Swimming Association of New York second team was third, and the Homestead Library Club, of Homestead, Pa., was fourth.

Lenore Kight, of Homestead, drew the most applause for her gallant fourth, where she swam probably the fastest 220 of any of the girls in the race.

Mae Cutnell, of Pittsburgh, was third in the medley, nosing out Lisa Lindstrom and Constance Hanf of W. S. A.

Penn, Dietz Even After 36-Hole Test

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 18.—Golfing history was made at the Washington County Golf and Country Club yesterday when Elwood Penn, of Washington, and Gus Dietz, of Canonsburg, playing a second round match in the President's Cup play, battled 36 holes without a decision. They will play another 18 today. Penn had an 80 score for the first 18, but was held even by Dietz who had an '83. Each had an 88 for the second 18.

Did you know that since he has gone under the management of Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion of the world, Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, who meets Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, in their long-awaited clash in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Monday night, has lost only one bout, to Tiger Joe Randall, at McKeesport, and that he has knocked out Buddy Stewart, Al Monroe, Sylvan Bass (technical) and Allen Beatty and beaten Joe Trippe and Billy Alger? . . . And that this will be his third meeting with McTiernan, the first two having occurred when they were amateurs, McTiernan losing the first (his first start as an amateur) on a foul for striking Belmont after flooring him, and winning the second (his fourth bout) by a technical knockout when the referee stopped the battle? . . . And that Klaus was the referee of the first Belmont-McTiernan battle and that Bunny Buntach, now managing McTiernan, is a former manager of Belmont and that all of these little angles have added fuel to the flames and helped to stir great interest in the forthcoming tussle, which has been talked about and "ribbed up" for more than a year?

A. A. Stagg

Amos Alonzo Stagg, football coach and athletic director of the University of Chicago, will be serving his fortieth season with the Maroons next fall, and, to celebrate the event, Yale will send its football team to Chicago to play his eleven . . . The game will mark the first time a Yale football team ever has gone West and has been arranged as a special tribute to the "Old Man," a former Yale star both on the gridiron and as a baseball pitcher . . . Stagg was a member of one of the late Walter Camp's earliest all-America teams, in 1889, and he was such a good pitcher that he turned down no less than six major league offers, one of them the then fabulous sum of $4,000 to pitch for the New York Metropolitans for a period of three months . . . One of his fondest memories is a game he pitched against Princeton in which he fanned 20 batters and allowed only two hits . . . Among the grid greats he developed at Chicago have been Walter Eckersall, Walter Steffen and Jess Harper, later Notre Dame coach and the man who brought along the late Knute Rockne, whose place he now is filling as athletic director at Notre Dame, having returned to jump into the breach following Rock's untimely death in an airplane accident.

Mickey Walker may get the biggest purse of his long career when he boxes Jack Sharkey in Brooklyn next Wednesday night for the benefit of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund . . . It is estimated the gate may hit $500,000, and his percentage thus would be $125,000. . . . His largest end to date has been a guarantee of $110,000 for his battle in England several years ago with Tommy Milligan, whom he knocked out. . . He received $100,000 for a bout with Dave Shade, in New York, $50,000 for boxing Tommy Loughran, $75,000 for a bout with Ace Hudkins, $30,000 the night he lost the welterweight title to Pete Latzo in Scranton and $25,000 for boxing the late Harry Greb on an all-star card in New York.

One of the complaints of the fans in Charleroi, who refrained from patronizing the Middle Atlantic League games to the extent that the Governors finally had to forfeit their franchise, was that the 12-team league was too unwieldy and the schedule worse and that it was so long between appearances of the various teams that they could not familiarize themselves with the players and therefore lost interest in them. . . . It all gets around to the old personal contact selling point. . . . The fans like to be close to the players and to have something in common with them, even if it is only a low batting average.

Eddie Fritz, Jr., 15-year-old son of Ed Fritz, New Castle (Pa.) sports writer, recently pitched two no-hit, no-run games for the Black Hawks against the Robins and Orioles in a junior league at the Fred L. Rentz Y. M. C. A. camp near Slippery Rock, and hit a home run, triple, double and single in the first of these battles. . . . Just giving the old man something to write about.—HARRY KECK.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Important fracases for position feature this afternoon's program of Pittsburgh Tennis Association Inter-Club League contesting, as 16 ambitious outfits attain the halfway mark in the bidivisional title chases. The mid-campaign station finds no less than four arrays bunched within hailing distance of the pace-setting Edgewood troupe in Section I, and though the crack Bellevue entry enjoys a clear lead over College Avenue, its nearest rival in the Section II standing, the destiny of the lower-sector crown is still far from being assured.

TOUGH TUSSLES

The top portion of the wheel today sees Edgewood encountering Beaver County invaders as Howdy Campbell hurls his hard-hitting College Hill crew against the vacation-depleted Suburbanites. Dave O'Loughlin's second-place P. A. A. aggregation will meanwhile trek to Stanton Heights, and, by dint of decisive showing against a Stantonian combine which, except for Capt Jack Beatty, has failed to flash impressively of late, will aim to cut down the two-notch margin by which the Edgewoodmen head the parade.

At the University Club, Don Mattern and his home guard will battle the well-balanced Mt. Lebanon delegation of Russ Unger in an affair that will have third position as the immediate prize, the said post being now held jointly by the Varsity and the Lebanon shotsmiths. The rehabilitated Westinghouse group will complete the upper-division card by entertaining South Hills.

BELLEVUE AT DUQUESNE

Section II offers prospect of heated argument with Bellevue jaunting to Duquesne Library for what looms as the North Boroughs aces' toughest session since their league debut.

College Avenue will face a dangerous foe in Westinghouse Seconds in the College-and-Walnut inclosure, while Washington Heights and South Hills are set for a neighborhood tussle, and the hustling Rockwood lads will journey to Point Breeze for hostilities with West Penn Power. The Washington Heights-South Hills melee is slated for the South Hills courts, but may be transferred to the Heights rectangles because of building operations.

RACE MIXTURE ON BOWL CARD

Matchmaker Jules Beck has lined up a league of nations card for the Meyers Bowl boxing show next Monday night, which will be headlined by that much-ballyhooed Buck McTiernan-Jimmy Belmont bout.

McTiernan is Irish and Belmont is Slavish, his real name being George Tilichy.

Meyer Frager, who boxes Jimmy Dontella in the second bout, is Jewish and his opponent is an Italian.

Between Rounds

A card of seven four-round bouts will be offered at the Castle Bowl, New Castle, Monday night. It is the second carnival of this sort to be staged there.

Tommy Crawley's victory over Eddie Cerda at White Plains, N. Y., was his third in a row in the East, the first two by the knockout route.

A reader wants to know if Joey Spiegel can beat Marty Gurnick, or vice versa. The promoters ought to match 'em and find out.

Jimmy Moore, local Negro middleweight, sings over KQV at 2:30 and over WWSW at 5 p. m. tomorrow. Meanwhile he is back in training and ready for bouts with anybody in his class. He would like to box Joe Walters or get a return bout with Mickey Solomen.

Matchmaker Bill Dunmier, of Hickey Park, is at work on the preliminary card for his return bout between Willie Davies and Jimmy Thomas, next Thursday night.

BOJORSKI STOPS HERMAN

ERIE, Pa., July 18.—Frank Bojorski, young Erie lightweight, stopped the veteran Babe Herman, of York, in the third round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Herman was floored five times in all, going down twice in the first round and three times in the third. A solid left to the jaw stopped him. Bojorski weighed 143 and Herman 146.

LUTHER GOLF VICTOR

EDINBORO, Pa., July 18.—(AP.)—Ted Luther, West Penn champ and Corry Country Club pro, won the monthly tournament of the Northwestern Pennsylvania Pro's Association yesterday with a 75-hole score of 145. Johnny Capehlance, of Edinboro, was second with 146 and Jones Millar, Erie, third, with 150. Joe Higgins, Erie, took fourth and the last money place with 148.

Are Wives Who Won't Have Children Poor Ones?

Can she Really Love her husband——

When she refuses to have any children?

It isn't a question of money or health. Nor a question of Edith having a "career" . . . she just doesn't want to be a mamma.

What would you think—and do, if you were in Dick's shoes?

He is healthy, husky, has a nice business—and thinks that home is not home without the patter of baby feet and the prattle of baby voices——

WIFE DISAPPROVES

But Edith says "No!"

So the Big Argument is on—and one more marriage, I suspect, is about to reach the parting of the ways.

"My Dear Miss Martin:

"Can a mere man bring his bewilderment and disappointment into your column and ask your advice? I have reached the point where I don't know what to think—or do, so I hope that you will help me out, and not just throw this in the waste basket.

"You hear a great deal nowadays about men 'not wanting to be bothered' with children. But in my case, the shoe is on the other foot.

"In our marriage, it is my wife who absolutely refuses to have a family. I adore children myself and, when I met Edith and fell in love with her, it was the dream of my life to marry her, and to someday watch our youngsters grow to young manhood and young womanhood. I thought she felt the same way, but I was mistaken.

"Half of this dream has come true. I married her. And I have the home . . . but there are no children in it and, from the attitude that she takes, I have lost hope that there ever will be.

DOESN'T UNDERSTAND

"I have talked and talked to her about it. In my own humble opinion, I wouldn't make a bad father. I am strong and healthy—as is she—I have a good business and investments that would insure the children a comfortable future and a good education, if something should happen to me. So there is no question of not being able to 'afford' them. And Edith is not bitten with the 'career' bug. She stays at home, keeps our house beautifully, and herself fresh and attractive.

"I can't understand her attitude. I think sometimes that it is because she is so orderly and doesn't want a child or children around to upset things for her.

"Of course she doesn't say that's the reason. She claims that 'having children is taking a terrible chance, because you never know how they're going to turn out, or what heartaches they may cause you,' and moreover, she 'doesn't care for children.'

DOUBTS HER LOVE

"The fact that I do care for them, and feel that a home isn't a home without them, seems to mean nothing at all to her. In fact, I'm beginning to wonder just how much I mean to her.

"Do you think that a woman really loves her husband when she refuses to give him children, knowing how much it means to him? I am beginning to seriously doubt it.

"Please help me. What am I to think? What can I do?

"DICK."

Well, I'm going to turn those questions over to the Gang, my friend. We'll see what they think. Come on, Mrs. Jones, Mr. Brown . . .

Can a woman love her husband, and still deny him his greatest dream?

Is such a person a good wife . . . is she even a normal wife? And is there any chance for happiness in such a marriage?

'WHAT DO LITTLE GIRLS THINK OF?'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Well, you would be surprised if you knew what goes on in many a head you are looking mildly at besides that of a young girl—this meek and mediocre head with the tight wad of hair and the gran'-motherly hat—that one with dyed hair and unhappy eyes—this one with liquid Italian eyes under a dove-grey fedora above a scarlet necktie—yet another fresh and young, with the shining eyes and hair of an infant and the cheek of a cherub—this old one bent and grey, looking with faded blue eyes at the sky-line of a big city—that neat skull with a smart permanent and an Agnes hat in a taxi—and another neat skull—but masculine—with sunburnt hair and a 10-gallon sombrero looking thoughtfully up at you from a New Mexican station platform.

The youthful head! the oldster; the feminine sconce and the head-piece of the man; the heads of the plain and the beautiful; if we could see inside them as into a sun-parlor, what surprises; what griefs to pity! what loyalties to respect; what dark thoughts to flee from! what featherlight ones to grin at! a jazz tune singing itself over and over alongside the treasured memory of a beloved dead face! "Will the cheque come today? I bet any thing I've got a run in my stocking. I mustn't forget the Holland rusks. What a clever fellow Paul Revere was, did no end of things beside ride a horse. I WONDER who killed that poor Starr Faithfull. Is this my station I wonder? How big am I beside the last and biggest wheel of the cosmic scheme? Where on earth did I spend that ten dollars? Mother—Mother, will I ever stop missing you—!"

Mixed thoughts such as these in many heads; do not we all think much in this broken way?

But to go back to what do little girls think about? If we could see a cross-section of a charming head? Much depends upon the girl. And in any case we would be surprised, I think. We would never see what we would have expected to see.

It is not only our well-known friend's face whose pattern we smugly think we can fit his thoughts to. We arrange the thoughts of strangers as we are sure they SHOULD be—"by their faces!" According to many a young man, a look into any young girl's head should be a picture something like this above. But though he may see the pretty foliage and garniture of hair and eyes and lips and ears of the garden without, he can only guess at the furniture in the house. You may walk in the garden—but the house of the brain is our secret dwelling place—and in it we think long, long thoughts. And a young man may be very wrong about his guess at them!

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Early Attention Wise in Kidney Disturbance

A common and often neglected disease of the kidney is that condition known as "hydronephrosis."

Hydronephrosis, as the name implies, is an enlargement of the kidney, due to obstruction and the retention of fluid. It is brought about by a disturbance in the mechanics of the kidney.

Dr. Copeland

A kidney stone, a twist in the drainage tube, or an obstruction in any portion of the tract leading from the kidney to the bladder, holds back the urine. Because the urine cannot pass on into the bladder, it is forced upwards into the kidney. When the accumulation is great it produces pressure, of course, and this may cause necrosis, or death of the kidney tissue.

The kidney gradually enlarges. More and more urine collects in the kidney because it has no avenue of escape. In spite of this it is surprising how slight is the pain in this condition. When pain does occur, it is severe while it lasts, but it quickly subsides.

This trouble is often neglected, for years possibly. When it is finally recognized the kidney has been damaged to an extent far beyond hope of recovery.

In advanced cases it is necessary to resort to surgery, perhaps with removal of the diseased kidney. Surgery in these cases is imperative, because if the condition is permitted to drag on, damage will be done to the other kidney.

If the pain is severe, the trouble makes itself known at once. If recognized early and the cause of the obstruction is removed, it is very probable the kidney will be saved.

It is possible to thrive very well with one kidney. It is not absolutely essential to have two. There are records of a few persons who have been born with but one kidney and yet have lived to advanced age. There are many instances where a kidney has been removed in childhood without subsequent ill effects.

I speak of these cases to encourage the victim of hydronephrosis. But of course early attention is far, better than the necessity for radical surgery.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Say It In Our Own Words

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Elders always tell me that the younger generation need not worry because there is always someone to help us or do the right thing for us. A few points in etiquette have been worrying me, but I know a kind Mrs. Beeckman who will solve these better than anyone else.

1. I live near a local college and, naturally, I am in contact with some of the boys. I care for none of them, but Etiquette bids me do the right thing. One young man sent me an invitation to the commencement exercises . . . they are to be held in the afternoon, and my work prevents me from attending. He knew I could not attend. I thought of sending him a congratulation card and on an ordinary correspondence card tell him in the usual form that I am unable to attend. Kindly give me your opinion.

2. My work is dental assisting. The correspondence is generally handled by me, and I often sign Dr.'s name per my initials. He once said to omit the title of doctor before his name, so I put D. D. S. at the end. He also remarked that it was unnecessary to do this. Is he right? I feel that the patients notice this. E.

What a charming paragraph that first paragraph is! I shall always keep it in my thought-treasury . . . thank you for it.

1. I wouldn't like to have you send this kind and thoughtful young gentleman a ready-made congratulation card. After all, it isn't what a stranger expresses on a ready-made card that we wish to send to our friends, but it is what we say, in our own words, in our own handwriting.

So, instead of sending him a congratulation card, write him a note of congratulation and good wishes . . . on letter paper, not on a correspondence card.

2. Your employer is right, in both cases. When you sign his letters with your initials beneath his name, you should sign only the name, with no title before it, and with no degree-initials after it.

No Rule for Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am in mourning for a sister. What is the conventional duration of time, please? And what would you suggest in the way of summer clothing? A. B.

Nowadays there are no conventions as to the length of time one wears mourning, or the kind of mourning that one should wear. Formerly all this was definitely regulated, the kinds of mourning for the varying degrees of relationship, and the length of time for wearing mourning in each case.

But now all this has been changed, and quite sensibly too, I think. The modern view is that, as a reader wrote the other day, "One mourns with the heart and not with the clothes," and therefore each person should do as she or he wishes; should do the thing that makes the mourning what she or he wishes it to be. If we wish, we wear heavy mourning, and for as long as we wish. If we wish not to wear mourning at all, no one will criticize us nowadays. So, dear A. B., do just as you wish, just what will bring you comfort in these (I know full well) difficult days of readjustment without your dear sister.

The perfect mourning clothes for summer are white ones, for, as you know, all white is as "deep" mourning as all black. Too, black and white is appropriate, and very comfortable, and this year, very convenient to buy, since it is so fashionable.

Candy Dishes Are Attractive

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly tell me the correct way to serve chocolates? "A" says they should be served from the box, but "B" thinks they should be served from a candy dish. A and B.

It is more attractive, I think, to serve them in a candy dish. Especially nowadays when we can find so many lovely jars, some conveniently with covers.

Madge Intends to Notify Lillian of Daughter's Peril

My father's arms held me closely as he listened to my story of the Chinese who had brought me the threatening message to give up the "girl's box with papers." I had fought myself back to composure by the time I had finished, and was furious at the nervous weakness which had made me give way to tears, for I saw that my father's worry over me was overshadowing his undeniable anxiety concerning the menacing message which the Chinese had brought.

"One thing is certain," he said, firmly. "You are not to trouble yourself about this any longer. There are certainly men enough in this house to attend to this matter. Have you spoken to Dicky yet—and—where are the children?"

His voice was suddenly sharp, and I hurried into reassuring speech.

"The children and Marion are being looked after most carefully," I told him. "I haven't had an opportunity to speak to Dicky—he has been occupied with his mother, you know."

"I know." My father's voice was grim—he always preserves the amities with my captious mother-in-law, treats her with never-failing courtesy, but he is too doting a parent to accept with equanimity her occasional strictures against me.

"But I spoke to Mr. Underwood and to Mary," I hurried on, gingerly skirting the subject of my mother-in-law, "and Mary is keeping Marion upstairs—luckily they had a lot of talking to do, so they are enjoying a tray on the upper veranda And Harry has promised not to let Junior and Roderick out of his sight. I did not have time to tell either Harry or Mary why I wished their help, but they were good enough to take my word that watchfulness was necessary."

"I might have known," my father said, tenderly. "Your perceptions and resourcefulness never fail; your spirit is always more than willing, no matter how much you may have to scourge the flesh——"

"Oh, father! Please!" I laughed outright, with a little wriggle of uneasiness at his flamboyant encomium. "My flesh hasn't felt even the flick of a whip. I'm really very fit, indeed. You mustn't judge me by those ridiculous tears a few minutes ago. It's just that yours is so wonderfully comfortable a shoulder to weep on, it's a temptation to a daughter who, really, never has occasion to shed tears."

"You mean you never permit yourself to recognize an occasion," my father said, but there was relief in his voice, and I knew that I had found the only way of quieting his fears for me.

"I want to keep everything away from Lillian as long as possible, and so does Harry," I went on hurriedly, "but he thinks she will go to her room soon for a nap before dinner, and, as Mother Graham will do the same thing, we can then have a conference."

"I can't wait that long," my father said, with decision. "I am going directly to the village now and I want you to promise me that you will not leave the grounds here until I get back. No—" as I opened my lips in question. "I cannot tell you why now. I never have exerted any parental authority over you"—he smiled at me tenderly but it was only the wraith of a smile and it betrayed the tense anxiety beneath his quiet exterior—"but I think I shall ask you for implicit unquestioning obedience upon this point."

"You shall have it," I returned seriously, then added a smiling parody. "Father knows best," I said, and he gave me an answering smile, as ghost-like as the first.

"In this particular instance I know he does," he said. "And now, do you feel able to go back to the house?"

"Oh, yes, indeed," I said, putting my hands in the ones he held out to me and, with his hand under my arm as if I were an elderly invalid with heart attacks, he led me toward the house. We had walked but a few steps, however, when he uttered a dictum which surprised me so much that I stopped and stared at him.

"Why do you wish to keep everything from Lillian?" he asked. "It is not possible, nor practicable."

"Why not?"

He gave me the smile of a man absolutely sure of his own authority and instinct, and I knew that his self-confidence was fully justified.

"Because her perceptions are so keen, her intuition so unerring that she will know before many hours there is something concerning her or hers which you are concealing. Do you want that?"

"No," I faltered, "but—you see she knows nothing of the contents of that lock box—Marion never confided that to her because of her dying grandmother's special prohibition."

"But Marion showed the box and its contents to you," my father said gravely.

"Yes, and she—" I stopped short, wondering if he had caught my slip.

Household Hints

If starch water is used for cleaning outdoor steps they will keep clean longer and rain will not spoil them easily.

If house plants droop from no apparent cause and stop thriving, try watering them solely from the bottom by pouring water into the saucers each day. Frequently this will give a plant new life, for they love food coming up through the soil.

Salt and vinegar make cucumber tough and indigestible. For sandwiches put the salt on the bread and butter, not on the cucumber.

Keep a list of "emergency calls" near your telephone. Just because you may have memorized the doctor's number and others of similar importance, the rest of the family may lose valuable time in looking up these numbers in your absence.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Something more than muscular flexibility is necessary to produce grace of body movement. There must be co-ordination between body and mind. The self-conscious girl is seldom graceful. She doesn't know what to do with her feet, so she kicks up the rugs. She feels that her hands are as big as her head, in the way. Her beauty stunt is to try to forget herself, to keep her chest up, hips back and tummy flat. Then feet and hands and movement will take care of themselves. They can't be awkward.

Time to start flirting with old Mister Sun. Every day now his rays become more direct, laden with pep-giving elements that are good for everything that ails you. Protect hands and complexion with cold cream, when taking a sun bath. Getting the skin burned doesn't do it any good, but a light tanning makes for loveliness now that health and vitality are fashionable. Looking well is a step toward feeling well. Spring sunlight takes winter moths out of dull spirits. Get all you can of it. Also give your hair the air; it will dance and sing.

Keep the Track Clear

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

The manner in which we set out to obtain our objectives and the manner in which we overcome the hurdles, which always seem to loom up before we have attained them, are pretty good indicators of our character and personality.

In childhood, we go directly for it with no fear of objections, no caution as to our diplomacy, no thought of failure, because very little children have not yet built up that memory of failure. And it is the responsibility of adults in charge of them to see that they never do build it up.

And what may happen if we are not careful to nurture the normal, straight-forward desire to attain any reasonable object? Many things in the character of the child.

If he is circumvented too much, told "No" too often, he will attempt to gain the objective by sneaking up to it. Or, he may develop a seemingly cowardly, timid attitude which arrests further attempt to gain it. In either case the child is steered away from the normal straight course of attaining success, of satisfying curiosity, of achieving a desired object.

As an example, two little boys had decided to go to the circus. The fathers in each case forbade it. There may or may not have been good reasons for this, but that is beside the point. The main thing to observe is the manner in which each boy met his obstacle and gained his objective.

The one, who had been allowed to follow his exploratory and curiosity urges, immediately felt that there was a legitimate way out. He asked Dad if he earned the money himself he could go. Dad said he could. The boy raked grass, did a paint job and carried out ashes. He paid his way and entered the "big top" proudly.

The other boy, who met a careless "No" on many occasions when he might as easily have had a "Yes," sneaked onto the grounds, crawled under the tent and sneaked out, lying about his afternoon's activity when he reached home.

It is our own careless cluttering of the track of character development in childhood which warps natures, as shown by the boy who sneaked to his objective. Don't make your child sneak, or lose all initiative. If you can't give him what he wants (and it is right that he should have it), show him how to gain it—not by craft and deceit, but by a legitimate alternative.

We all, in adult life, need the brave, straight attempt to succeed which normal children possess. Let's keep the tracks clear so they may remember success rather than failure.

Kitty Fears Implication in Lawlor Divorce Case

CHAPTER XX.

Pretending not to have heard the odious name Thad Parsons' bride had called me, I finished my slow display walk up and down the runway, never flinching at the "Ooh's" and "Ah's" that I heard on either side.

But my cheeks did burn red when, as I finished my little solo parade and was crossing the mirror floor of the platform, there was a burst of applause.

Mrs. Miers hugged me when I got back to our big room.

"Dearie—you did it—you got applause for one of the Miers' creation—the first applause of the day," she fairly gurgled.

I knew that the applause was for the gown, but I wasn't such a fool as not to realize that part of it was for myself. Chubb Osmund was there, of course, and I caught a flash of him and of Forrest Malvern, and both were applauding.

While some materials were being shown and lectured upon by an expert, some of us went into the crowd. It was all in the game. Men stared at us. Women stared at the clothes.

Chubb pressed forward when he saw me, but before he could get to me I ran into Arline and Curt.

Arline pretended not to see me.

"Hello Curt—where's Susie?" I asked.

"She—er—couldn't get here tonight, Miss Mason," he said, just a shade embarrassed.

Arline then tried to look at me as though I were a worm.

"We're waiting for Arline's husband," Curt added.

ARLINE STUMPED

"Oh," said Arline, when she saw that she had to recognize me, "you are the young person who was down at Curt's place one week-end."

"Yes indeed," I answered, flashing her a sweet little smile, "and you are the older person who was stuck on a sand bar all night!"

Curt Lawlor actually laughed, but Arline Parsons—how odd it seemed to think of her as Thad's wife!—turned almost a brick red, grabbed Curt's arm and fairly dragged him away. I am sure she heard me laugh. I intended that she would.

Chubb came up and greeted me, his eyes popping as he saw me closer in the daring dress.

"Oh, you beautiful," he whispered.

"Positively the star of the show," said a voice at my other side. I turned and saw Forrest Malvern smiling at me.

"How do, Miss—er—" Fanny Dutton hesitated.

"Miss Mason," Mr. Malvern said, and I am sure I saw him scowl at her.

"It's perfectly marvelous what clothes can do for a person," she said.

"Not half as marvelous as what a beautiful girl can do to adorn clothes," Mr. Malvern came right back.

"I'll hand it to you, Mr. Malvern," Chubb said. "You sure say the right things before I can even think of them."

Fanny Dutton began to talk about the dresses to me until Viola came up and she turned to admire Viola's dress, a sort of faint oyster gray relieved only by a large artificial red giant poppy. It was stunning. While Fanny Dutton was talking to Viola Mr. Malvern turned to me.

"My dear," he said, "we must all have a party soon."

MALVERN GIVES PARTY

"Then it's as good as arranged. I'll telephone you," Mr. Malvern said.

I agreed. He was certainly the most distinguished appearing man there. And this time it was quite different from the other time he had telephoned me for at that time I was expecting Thad to marry me. Now I put marriage out of my mind for the time being. Time enough for that when a nice rich lad came along. At the present my interest was in gay parties, and I knew that Forrest Malvern was a wonderful entertainer from the little I had seen and from all that Polly Hawkins had told me.

"Have you heard from Dolly?" I asked Mr. Malvern.

"Dolly, Dolly? Oh, the little Hawkins kid—no, I haven't heard. I told you I imagined she had gone back to the farm and married some nice steady-going hick."

"Not Dolly; she wasn't that sort," I insisted.

Fanny Dutton turned back to us, and Malvern instantly changed the subject.

I wondered why he seemed to have so utterly forgotten pretty little Dolly Hawkins when, as I knew from seeing them, he used to be crazy about her. I decided that he was peeved, and his pride hurt because she had disappeared.

The fashion show pleased Mr. and Mrs. Miers. They had great success. This time both Viola and myself got a present of a hundred dollars.

And I had my picture in three rotogravure sections and also in a news reel. Viola was almost as fortunate, she got in the news reel and one newspaper.

"This may mean a call from Ziggy himself," Viola declared. "And think of that! Three or four hundred a week for being glorified show girls."

"Dream on," I told her.

A month later, it was, before we got around to the party with Forrest Malvern. Chubb took me, Denny Thurston took Viola. To my surprise Mr. Malvern came alone. There was no sign of Fanny Dutton. He was a wonderful host and we had a glorious time of it in a private dining room with special entertainers and little diamond barpin favors for the girls. There were four girls in the party and five men, including Mr. Malvern.

LUXURIOUS PLACE

He made us promise to have another party a month from that date. We were to take in a new revue that would open then. He seemed to know all about those things. Then he was going to entertain us up at his swell bachelor apartment.

I had never been there, but I knew they were swell because Dolly Hawkins had told me all about the place, with his house on the roof, a glassed in dining room with a fountain and growing roses and orchids.

When we had the party and got there after the show I found that Dolly hadn't exaggerated at all. I had to keep my wits about me in order not to rave too much and appear green.

A Japanese servant served our supper. There were wines and cocktails galore. If I had indulged in half of them I would have been down and out.

There were 12 of us. Four got to playing bridge. The rest of us danced to radio music, the music coming at that late hour all the way from an orchestra in San Francisco over Mr. Malvern's special radio that he called his "DX." He had another for local stations.

Mr. Malvern took me about the place. The library was lined with books, the big living room was brilliant with wonderful paintings, each with its own soft light overhead.

There was a cozy little den and on the walls were probably 20 pictures of girls.

"I want one of yours—to top the lot, Kitty," Mr. Malvern said.

I promised to get one for him.

"Yes, she was a cute kid—too bad she went back to the sticks—now here's Duchessa Framli, she was a New York girl—" and he chatted away for a while and then went back to the dancing.

DIVORCE ACTION

As Chubb was getting ready to take me home Mr. Malvern got a chance to speak to me for a moment.

"You and I must have a two-some party soon, Kitty," he said.

"I'd be delighted—but of course not up here," I answered.

"No, no—certainly not—we can't fly in the face of the all-wise conventions nor flaunt Mrs. Grundy, my dear."

Chubb came along at this time. He and Denny took Viola and myself home. The sun was rising!

How the time had whizzed around without our realizing it.

And I had to be at the Miers establishment at 10 the next morning.

The alarm clock awakened me at nine and I yanked Viola out of bed. I started the coffee. Viola went to bring in the tiny jar of cream and with it the morning paper.

The thing that caught my eye was the single column headline on the first page. It read:

MRS. CURTIS LAWLOR BRINGS ACTION FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. M. Thad Parsons Is Named in Sensational Suit—She Is a Bride of Less Than Six Months.

Viola saw my eyes pop and heard me exclaim. She read over my shoulder.

"For Pete's sake," she yelled, "can you tie that one!"

"Serves him right—Oh, gee, I wonder if you'll be dragged into this case any way—as a witness or something?"

I stared at Viola. The idea frightened me, and yet there was a possibility of that very thing happening.

DAILY SHORT STORY

'The Bird'

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Dinner Party Proves Fatal To Artist's Wife

They called jolly Tom Anders "The Bird."

For many years, 10 at least, his acquaintances called him "The Bird." They got so that they called him that to his face.

Tom rather enjoyed it.

It seemed to him to be quite a compliment.

One speaks of a "bird of a shot" or a "bird of a story" and the expression is used in many other ways.

To be a bird of a chap among his friends naturally pleased Tom.

Tom's crowd consisted of a rather clever bunch of men, artists, advertising writers and that sort.

Tom had been working for a big advertising concern and finally started out for himself. In a careful and conservative way Tom began to prosper and it pleased him because to prosper meant that he could give his wife, Myra, all sorts of luxuries.

Myra loved luxuries.

Even when they had been rather poor Myra, Tom remembered, managed to save amazingly well from her allowance for the household and pick up splendid bargains. She seems to always have nice clothes and to go with a jolly class of prosperous friends.

PRETTY GIRL

She was a stenographer for Graham, boss of the agency where Tom went in to learn the game.

Tom wasn't much then. He was trying to learn many things at once, for he was ambitious. He wanted to know the salesmanship end of advertising as well as the copy writing end.

He realized that good copy would get clients, but one had to have the knack and a little background.

Finally it got so that Tom's copy was being used quite often and Graham, who could see advertising genius far off, increased Tom's salary enough to keep him ambitious and satisfied at once. Without ambition, Tom's work would fall down.

Now and then Tom would take Myra to a show or out to luncheon, but she didn't go very often.

Tom could afford to entertain her more after his raise and while Myra was always nice and smiling to him, she was nice and smiling to all of them.

Tom got so that he thought Myra was one of the prettiest girls he knew.

She always dressed well, she always made Tom leave her at her lodging-house door, she never gave the least hint of being gay or modernistic.

She didn't pet. A good-night kiss, now and then, and that was all.

When Tom came back from talking with the Zemba Manufacturing Company about some advertising, one afternoon, he found Myra picking up her few belongings over at her little desk, and she was crying.

"What's the matter, Myra, headache?"

AGREES TO MEET TOM

He had a hunch that it was something more serious when he saw her packing together her few books and things.

Myra sobbed afresh and shook her head.

"Look here, can't I help you? What's the idea?"

"Fired," Myra said.

Fired? Graham fired you? That's damn strange, what happened?"

"Oh, he—he has a right to his ideas, I know. He thinks he ought to have a man secretary, that's all."

"Well—well of all things! That's a tough break, Myra. Say, I'll drop around at 7 tonight and take you to dinner, we'll talk it over—plenty other jobs, you know, but I'll miss you."

"All right, Tom—you're a dear."

Myra smiled through her tears.

Tom wanted to go to Graham and ask him why the devil he fired Myra, but he dared not do that. It is a good thing he didn't for Graham was feeling mighty ugly just then.

Tom went around and took Myra to dinner and they talked it over.

They rode up town, they went to a movie and snuggled back together in the dark and they went back to the lodging house and sat on the step.

For the first time, Myra snuggled into his arms and kissed him and clung to him and Tom was madly in love.

"Well, I have only myself in the world, Myra, and you're alone, why don't you marry me? We can sneak down and be married tomorrow noon. You can hunt up a nice room for us, we'll get along swell."

Myra kissed him.

The next day they were quietly married and went to live in a room and kitchenette.

Tom was very happy.

He never knew that Graham had to fire Myra because his wife had found out that he was playing around with her.

Tom worked hard and he succeeded. He made many acquaintances and he did his best to keep Myra supplied with good clothes.

She seemed to have quite a knack for that, on the small amount he could give.

The time came when Tom's advertising copy was in such demand that he branched out for himself. It was a struggle at first, but he finally succeeded.

By this time his friends liked him more than ever, and also felt sorry for him.

They knew all about Myra then. They knew that Graham, Tom's old boss, was still meeting Myra at a little hotel. They knew of three other men who entertained Myra in their apartments by day—and by night if Tom happened to be on a business trip.

But, as Al Parker said to Joe Walton, "A man can't tell his best friend anything like that."

Tom prospered so well, seemed always so happy, and was so proud of his wife that his friends couldn't help seeing the joke in it—their idea of a joke.

They had long been calling him "The Bird."

Everyone laughed heartily. Tom laughed and this made them laugh even more.

Tom rather liked being called "The Bird." It sounded as though he was popular.

It was out in St. Louis, on a business trip, that Tom learned something. The work was over, contracts signed and the drinking party went on.

OVERHEARS CONVERSATION

Tom was in the men's room at the hotel and heard Al Parker and Hawley, a local advertising agent, talking. Both were very drunk. Hawley said something about Anders putting over a swell contract for himself.

"Yup — 'The Bird' land's 'em," Al agreed.

"Say, why do you boys call him The Bird?"

"Don't you know? Gee, shouldn't tell—it's funny and it's tragedy, he is th' only one who isn't wise—wife trouble."

"Wife trouble? What's that?"

"Aw, for Pete's sake, Hawley, The Bird, a cuckold—get me?"

"Sure—that's rich, th' Bird, eh?"

Tom waited a while and went to his room and sent for a dictionary. He looked up the definition of the word.

His contracts were all signed there, so he checked out that night, leaving his friends wondering what had become of him.

Tom didn't announce his arrival back home. He went to a hotel and he made some investigations. Then he said to his wife, "Get the hell out!"

She went out, laughing at him.

Friends told him plenty then, after they found out that he knew.

"She's going around to night clubs now, telling how she nicked you for all your money these 10 years and went playing around at the same time with live wire men who could give her big presents—she boasts in a shrill voice when she's drunk, which is mostly, of what a sap she made of you," one of Tom's friends told him.

A little later Tom mentioned to a dozen or more acquaintances that his wife was begging to come back.

This wasn't true.

"Naturally I refuse," Tom always said.

Then he heard Myra was planning to divorce him and make him pay alimony, she was going to Reno or some place.

Tom telephoned her then.

"This is Tom, Myra, I've got a lot of things to talk over with you, suppose you have dinner at the Maybold tonight?"

POISONS WIFE

"All right."

So he met her and they went to the Maybold.

He bought drinks, was very attentive and when she kept urging him to tell her what he wanted he would put her off.

He produced some money, a big bill on the outside of some ones.

"Here, I'll slip this in your bag, Myra, you might be able to use it," he said.

"Sure," she said, wanting to laugh in his face for being so easy.

He opened her bag, put in the money and, unseen by her, dropped in a little bottle of tiny tablets, a deadly poison.

"Well, look over there — if there isn't the man who stole you from me, Myra!" Tom said.

"Where?"

"Oh, my mistake, thought it was Graham—"

"Don't mention names, you sap," Myra snapped at him.

"Here's to getting all we deserve, Myra!"

They drank. As Myra drank, and a waiter stood near, Tom said sharply:

"I've told you a hundred times I wouldn't take you back!"

Myra gasped, choken, fell.

She was dead when the ambulance came.

* * *

"Say," Al Parker called to Joe Walton at the office next morning, "did you read where 'The Bird's wife killed herself with poison last night when he refused to take her back?"

"No."

"Sure, they found the rest of the poison in her bag and a waiter heard Tom refuse to take her back, then she swallowed the stuff."

"She had it coming," Joe said.

"Sure did, wonder how 'The Bird' feels?"

Good Business

New City Bond Issue Is Profitable Transaction—Brief Comment on Local News Items.

The city has done a good stroke of business in issuing $2,350,000 of councilmanic bonds on a 3¾ per cent interest basis to pay off claims bearing 6 per cent interest. The premium now commanded by municipal bonds makes this an especially good time for cities, boroughs, townships and counties to borrow money.

The census figures for the nation's metropolitan areas are soon to be announced, according to a Washington dispatch. The new arrangement is to include in the metropolitan territory adjoining districts having a population density of not less than 150 per square mile. Formerly the area included everything within a 10-mile radius. The new plan should place Pittsburgh well to the front of the nation's cities.

In violation of a city ordinance large yellow signs advertising Senator James J. Coyne as a candidate for county commissioner were stenciled on the steps and sidewalks of the Courthouse and City-County Building Thursday night. That is certainly not a recommendation for the candidate. No wonder he repudiates it! It is about time to enforce the law which forbids utilization of city-owned property for political advertising.

Remote as the likelihood seems of another such accident as that of Thursday in which an automobile crashed through a guard rail around the Highland Park Reservoir, with the resultant death by drowning of the two occupants, it is just as well to take preventive action. Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang deserves commendation for his tentative plan to erect posts joined by steel cables.

The National Miners Union testified to its regard for Thomas Myerscough, who is charged with responsibility for the fatal clash between strikers and deputy sheriffs at Wildwood, June 22, by electing him to an important office yesterday. Myerscough, at liberty under $12,500 bail, has, of course, not been adjudged guilty; nevertheless the union would have done better to wait until he has been cleared by a jury before honoring him.

Six telephone girls are reported to have been dis- missed by the Yellow Cab Company because, they say, they refused to tell inquirers that the strike was over and it was safe to ride in taxicabs. It is a serious charge the girls make, and one which the company cannot afford to ignore. The company does not show as high regard for public opinion as sound business policy would suggest.

Twenty-eight educational and social service organ- izations in Pittsburgh have joined hands in a campaign to prepare foreign-born residents for American citizenship. A praiseworthy movement. Recently published census figures showing well over 100,000 aliens living here emphasize the need of such a campaign.

Bellevue had a great turnout of volunteer firemen from nearby communities at its annual firemen's carnival Friday night. The volunteer firemen's affairs play a prominent part in the life of many of the boroughs. There has been a good deal of joking in late years about the firemen's conventions; but the fact remains that the volunteer fire fighters are generally very efficient, and the spirit of rivalry engendered by their conventions and carnivals helps to make them so.

A Pittsburgher, Tell W. Nicolet, has just been en- rolled in the American Legion as its millionth member. The Grand Army of the Republic did not attain its maximum strength until long after the Civil War, and it looks as if the Legion's experience would be similar. A Pittsburgher, by the way—Col. Eric Fisher Wood—took a prominent part in the formation of the Legion.

The Pittsburgh Railways Company's "Safety First" car—the one bearing numerous signs warning against accidents — was damaged yesterday by a collision with an automobile. It reminds us that the terrible Equitable Gas explosion on the North Side occurred during "No Accident Month." These things, nevertheless, do not warrant cynicism as to the value of safety propaganda. Statistics prove the value of the safety movement.

It speaks well for the kindness of heart of the peo- ple of this district that 60 couples desired to adopt a 7-year-old motherless Edgeworth boy. The incident bears witness to the general feeling that children bring into a home happiness and pleasure which more than compensate for the trouble and expense involved in raising them.

Under the heading "How to Live in Hot Weather" we find in the current number of "Pittsburgh's Health," monthly publication of the Department of Health, this advice: "Keep mentally occupied, so that there is no time to worry about the heat." A pleasant way to keep mentally occupied is to take part in the Sun-Telegraph's $2,000 cash prize fiction title test.

There will be an abundance of good things in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph to keep the readers mentally occupied. The first eight pictures in the fiction title test will be printed, so that new entrants may have opportunity to start on an equal footing with the others. The American Weekly section will have an extremely interesting article about a new revision of the Bible.

H. L. Heinrich, of Mosgrove, Pa., expresses in a letter to the Sun-Telegraph a thought that nearly everyone must have had who has ever made a journey up the beautiful Allegheny River. He calls for a highway along the river shore from Pittsburgh to Olean. Pittsburgh has done something to further such a project, and there is a good road beside the river from Tionesta to Warren. It is to be hoped the gaps will be filled in before long.

It is gratifying to note in the call issued by the Ohio Valley Improvement Association for its annual convention that it is going to work for the improvement of the tributaries of the Ohio. The work of the association was far from ended when year-round navigation to Cairo was established on the main stream.

Young men just out of preparatory school or col- lege and confronted with the task of choosing a vocation would do well to study the possibilities offered by the mineral industries. Dean Edward Steidle of the School of Mineral Industries at Pennsylvania State College reports that each of the 22 students graduated from the school last month is at work on a job obtained long before graduation.

The Big Shot Prepares His Defense

Why is it so many witnesses in racketeering cases "disappear" before the case is called in court?

Why is it that eye-witnesses in important gangster cases fall back on "I don't remember" when asked for information essential to the case of the prosecution?

Why is it that the state finds it so hard to make out a case against Big Shots in the Underworld?

Cartoonist Enright has an idea and he gives you his version of how an accused gangster gets ready to face the bar of justice.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Behold, when a damsel waxeth to womanhood, she putteth away childish things. But in all the days of his life, no man is ever without a TOY to solace and amuse him.

* * *

For, verily, verily, every man is born a playboy. And the woman that holdeth his love, forever, is neither the sophisticate, that impresseth him, but the Toy that keepeth him eternally AMUSED!

* * *

As a small boy, with an air rifle, as a babe with its first pair of shoes, so is every man with his newest toy.

As a child that buildeth a house of blocks, so is a man that seeketh to solve a puzzle. Neither danger, nor weariness, nor fear of sudden death can draw him therefrom until he hath finished.

* * *

As a tot with a new train of cars, so is a man with a new motor car. For, one day he taketh it apart and the next he putteth it together. And his delight in tinkering with its works is beyond understanding.

* * *

Yet, alas, what woman can persuade her husband to regard a spade and a lawnmower and a garden rake as playthings?

* * *

For a spade and a garden rake and a lawnmower signify WORK—and he will not take them seriously.

* * *

Lo, for an whole day will a man find great delight in testing the new vacuum-cleaner upon the rugs in his friend's house.

* * *

But when his wife pleadeth with him to test its powers upon the rugs in his own house, he will put it from him with a yawn of weariness, even as a babe that thrusteth away the rubber doll wherefrom he hath chewed off all the paint.

Lo, for an whole hour, will a man take joy in displaying the workings of a new patent sprinkler, while his friends stand about and shout, "Hear, hear!"

* * *

But when his wife urgeth him to drag it about the lawn on a hot evening he will pick up his hat and depart in haste, suddenly remembering an appointment.

* * *

* * *

Yea, he laboreth always half-heartedly. But he PLAYETH with his whole soul!

* * *

And let not any wife be disheartened so long as she remaineth ONE of her husband's "toys," wherein he findeth amusement!

OHM'S GREAT DISCOVERY

By Archibald Henderson

Although sketches of Ohm are not to be found in many dictionaries and encyclopedic works dealing with scientists, certain it is that he will rank high in future records of technical science. His name is embalmed in the language of technical science, on the electrical side. And the extraordinary neglect of his scientific work for a long time gave place ultimately to high repute and universal recognition for the intensive researches which produced genuinely classical results.

George Simon Ohm, a German, was born at Erlangen, in Bavaria, on March 16, 1789. He was the elder of two sons, his father being a master locksmith. Having a true appreciation of the value of learning, the father sent his sons to the elementary school, then to the local secondary school, and finally to the University of Erlangen. Although they had only three terms at the university, they had sufficient training to be able to continue their studies alone.

After teaching for a time, Simon had saved enough money to enable him to finish his course at the university. He then settled down to teaching, having secured an appointment in a school in Bamberg. When the school closed down, as the result of hard times during the period of the Napoleonic wars, Simon was bitterly disappointed, but courageously assisted his father in the locksmithing business.

Following the publication in 1817 of an "Essay on Geometry," which attracted favorable attention, he was rewarded with the post of teacher of mathematics and physics at the Jesuit High School in Cologne. Here he spent nine and a half successful years as a teacher. Although possessed of but slight means, he equipped himself with a little laboratory and constructed most of his apparatus himself. It was during this period of his teaching that he carried out, independently, the researches which made him known.

A suggestive principle, enunciated by Fourier, attracted Ohm's attention. This principle was that the total quantity of heat which flows in a given time is in direct proportion to the difference of temperatures between its two ends. Ohm set out to investigate a somewhat similar question: Is the current strength proportional to the difference of potential at the two terminals of a battery? As the result of his researches Ohm was able to derive the famous law of resistance to the passage of an electric current.

A second stage of his researches gave rise to the far more important law which proved to be of the widest application in electrical theory and practice. This law may be seated thus: for any given electrical circuit the current equals the electromotive force divided by the total resistance. This is now universally known as Ohm's law.

For some curious reason his results were sneered at and repudiated as worthless by German scientists. Years went by and Ohm was bitterly disappointed by the grossly unfair and unscientific treatment given his great discovery. Finally the tide turned; recognition began to come from foreign sources, and, finally in 1841, Ohm received the award of the coveted Copely Medal of the Royal Society of Great Britain. Twenty-seven years after his death, in 1854, the International Congress of Electricians at Paris paid honor to the memory of Ohm by naming for him the practical unit of electrical resistance.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

They were both fine people, fastidious and fair, who did not hold themselves or life cheaply. Yet they had been lovers for years, common law husband and wife.

And now, perhaps, you are disapproving?

Dan, the man, disapproved, too. He wanted to be married formally. He could see no earthly reason against it.

But Darrel, the woman, would not consent. She saw a reason—a grim, relentless reason. And she tried, desperately, to make Dan see it, too.

You can read about it in that terrible and true book "BREAK-UP" by Hagar Wilde. It must have taken brave and bitter living to have learned the things that are in that book . . . to have been able to put these words in Darrel's mouth—

"There they were at it again—adoring each other, unable to live without each other, yet tearing at each other's hearts.

"Why — thought the man — wouldn't she accept marriage, like other women? Why was she willing to give so much yet never willing to give all? Why didn't she want to possess and be possessed?

"And why—thought the woman—couldn't he see that the desire to possess and be possessed was the thing that spoiled love? Why couldn't he see that people had to stay themselves if they wanted to mean anything to each other?"

No, she wasn't arguing against marriage. She was arguing against the thing we do with marriage . . . against the spiritual wrong that women do to men and that men do to women. Dan would do that thing—she knew it. Dan would expect her to know everything in his mind and understand it and be interested in it. He would refuse to have any secrets from her. And he would refuse to let her have any secrets from him. He would expect her to show and explain everything that was in her mind. He would feel that he had a right to enter into every part of her life and change it, if he didn't like it.

And Darrel couldn't bear the thought of that. She wanted—she needed, desperately, to keep a part of her life to herself.

"THERE SHOULD BE ONE UNENTERED ROOM FOR EVERYBODY," said Darrel. And she was right.

One unentered room—one place apart from peering eyes and plucking hands. One place in each human being's life where he can be himself and know himself and make up his reckonings, without having to pretend or explain, argue or alibi. For if a man can't keep that much of his essential self . . . what is there left of their individual honesty and meaning? And what becomes of the mystery of love and the adventure of living?

One unentered room. But how often will we permit an unentered room in marriage? What friendly promises we make at first—

"I'll truly keep my hands off, dear."

But once bound in wedlock, what happens? Softly, surely, we come stealing, ear acock, to that locked door and whisper—

"Let me in, dear. Just this once. To help."

Then how many of us are brave or honest or wise enough to say: "NO! THIS IS MY ROOM. YOU WOULDN'T UNDERSTAND IT. YOU HAVEN'T ANY RIGHT TO EXPECT TO UNDERSTAND IT. GO AWAY!"

And how many of us are fair enough to go away quietly, without hurt or resentment in our eyes?

Or Larger Vision

He knew the wonder of the skies at night,
He saw the bloom of mounting star on star,
He was a comrade of the seagull's flight,
Translater of the waves' song on the bar.
Life ever flowed for him in cycles vast;
On history's page he saw the moving ranks,
The Roman legions marching from the past,
The toiling slaves along the Nile's low banks.

So to the brief vexations of the day
This man of larger vision paid scant heed;
He knew how soon a grief will pass away,
How small a thing is life's supremest need.
Why should he care, this friend of wave and sky,
If lesser, transient loves had passed him by?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. MUNDY

None is alone responsible for success in life.

You say you are a self-made man, but you are not, entirely.

If you had a plan and followed it you got your idea somewhere.

You were keen in observation and logical enough to recognize the benefits derived from a certain course of action, perhaps.

You were fortunate enough to be thrown into company where you could see the difference between the educated man and the illiterate.

Perhaps you enjoyed occasionally luxuries that were only obtained by men who had background of specialized information.

It is possible for a man to teach himself if he will.

He must want results hard enough to concentrate without being made to do it with regularity.

Desultory efforts don't count—but systematic, step by step, little by little, day by day methods get you somewhere.

If you were honest with yourself you could think of many circumstances where you benefited by persons or things with which you came in contact.

You took opportunity when it came, but you did not make it exactly.

Be grateful that you got the breaks, and were able to take them.

Text For Today Jesus said unto him, thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, This is the first and great commandment.—Matthew, xxii:37, 38.

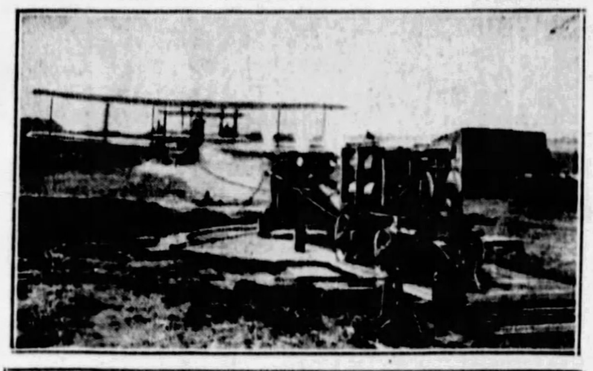
Tossing An Airplane

"More Than One Way to Skin a Cat."



HURLING A PLANE INTO THE AIR

Devious are the ways of getting an airplane started on its upward flight.

The common way is to set the propeller going, then race along the level ground until, gathering impetus, the machine slowly rises.

With the "glider," the flier goes to the top of a steep hill or mountain, starts down the side and then shoots off into space. That is how a heavy wild turkey gobbler starts his flight. He can't take off from level ground.

On our great airplane carriers, airplanes are "catapulted," hurled from the ship's deck, out over the water, and this, apparently, works well, without accident.

Here you see something new, a British machine that has recently been tested at the Farnborough Experimental Station actually hurling an airplane from the ground into the air. This machine, called a land "catapult," is the only machine of the kind ever made. It will interest our government and our Army, when we get ready to go into government aircraft SERIOUSLY.

As you see it here, this land catapult is hurling a nine-ton Vickers bombing plane into the air to start its flight.

Such machines would be extremely useful, especially when locating airplane stations at difficult spots on the coast, with inadequate flying fields, to meet any possible attack from the sea.

Undoubtedly, Mr. Hurley, secretary of war, and also Mr. Trubee Davison, who does such excellent work for government aviation, will be interested in this picture and what it means. They doubtless heard of it and began studying it long ago.

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

ROUEN, July 18.—Outside of Paris, Rouen is to my notion the most delightful city in France. We decided to remain over for the afternoon and evening and motor into Paris in the morning. Here, of course, Joan of Arc met her flaming fate and her spirit of sacrifice seems to dominate the citizenry.

Everywhere there is a gentle humility and kindness. Naturally the fascinating object of the town is the famous Cathedral; yet to the unartistic eye it appears a patchwork, mingling as it does the architectural styles from the Twelfth to the Fourteenth Century.

This gives it the jumble of mutilation—the saw-toothed effect of a New York skyline. Yet as the living voice of the periods they represent one stands in awe. Our guide was one of those conscienceless liars, as European guides usually are, and we quickly dismissed him to prowl on our own.

We struck out from the square surrounding the Cathedral through the dark Rue de l'Epicerie—the Street of Groceries—smelly, cluttered and with a sidewalk only for single-file travel. But at its other end there burst a dazzling flower market, ringing with the cry of venders.

A little farther on we ran into the entrance of what is perhaps the most gruesome of all the world cemeteries. It was founded during the black plague in the Thirteenth Century. And over the gateway are carved leaping skeletons dragging away victims. My wife went inside. I didn't. I'm not the "teep."

In a bleak little street nearby we came upon a tiny cafe with only two sidewalk tables. We sat down at one and from the dark bottled interior there waddled the fattest woman I've ever seen outside of a circus. She was such a monstrosity that Billy began barking.

And that brought out three large and fiercely shaggy mongrels that circled about menacingly with bared teeth. I tucked my dog under my arm, placed two francs on the table top and backed away down the narrow street. From every upstairs window protruded a smiling face.

After lunch—at which, incidentally, we ran into that beaming and insufferable nit-wit of shipboard who met me daily with hands rubbing to inquire: "Well, what may we expect from your pen tomorrow?"—we visited what is left of the Chateau de Rouen, built in 1205 by Phillipe-Auguste. Here Joan of Arc, with the torture instruments spread before her brave gaze, was questioned.

* * *

From there we walked to the Old Market Place and saw the exact spot where the heroine was burned to death. The tablet is set in the pavement and bears the date, May 30, 1431. To me Joan of Arc is by far the most courageous figure in old world history and I confess to a shudder standing on the identical ground where 500 years ago her spirit soared upward on wings of fire. Great monuments seem a tawdry expiation for such a bestial crime against one who had not only made a nation but gave the ruling king his crown.

We decided to put up for the night at one of those out of the way family-run pensions. It was magnificently named for Richard Coeur de Lion, whose ruined estate is in the Rouen environs. The entrance was through a garage like doorway into a stone-paved court. A pull at the concierge bell brought a shy but sternly lovely black-haired girl. She seemed completely abashed in the presence of foreigners and ran for her mother—an ample bosomed and smiling creature who showed us to a pleasant room leading off an outside stair. Rouen, despite its commercial activities, is still primitive. A coal oil lamp was the sole illumination. The bed was comfortable but the entire effect was cheerless. I gave my wife a knowing look, we made our excuses and departed for the leading hotel of the town. Our change of heart was received so graciously and so understandingly that from a corner market we sent the proprietress a bouquet.

Dinner tonight was under a python limbed oak in a hotel court. The branches were strung with electric lights which seemed to reflect the spirit of the mercurial diners underneath. The evening was surcharged with a fragrance, the chicken was excellent, a three-piece orchestra played "Valencia" and the chattering birds in the trees were especially well mannered. Some time I want to spend an entire holiday here. Thus bringing another old ruin to Rouen.
